BETHEL AND WEST PARIS TIE

Game Called in Tenth on Account of Darkness

Bethel and West Paris battled for ten innings with the score 4-4, darkness finally ending the tilt. It was a very close game throughout. West Paris scored first with two in the fifth. They did this on two hits including a two-bagger by Verrill, and the same number of fielders' choices. They scored one more in the sixth on a hit combined with an error. Bethel came back in their half and got three runs of their own to tie the score. Red got on by an error by the second baseman, Tripp, poked one out for a single and then White scored them both with a two-bagger and went to third himself on the throw home. He scored a minute later when the third baseman missed Jimmy's grounder. Bethel scored one more in the eighth when they combined a base on balls with a sacrifice and error and a hit by Yon. But West Paris knotted the score in the ninth when Benson drew a base on balls and went all the way home when Tripp heaved one that went by Yon like a bullet and rolled into deep center field before it was finally stopped. This made it four all and this it remained till it became too dark to play and the game had to be called.

Gill Loses Pitchers' Duel with Haines

Haines pitches masterly ball allowing but six hits and striking out 15 men against nine hits off Jack and his 11 strike outs. Bethel got two runs in first on two hits, a sacrifice and an error and then they were thru for the day. Rumford didn't score until the seventh and then they secured five hits which were good for four runs and enough to win the ball game.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our thanks to the kind friends and neighbors for their words of sympathy and for the beautiful tributes during the illness and loss of our little one.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Haman and children.

WIND STORM WORKS HAVOC AROUND BETHEL

The severe thunderstorm, which struck Bethel about nine o'clock Saturday evening accompanied by an extremely high wind did more damage to trees and electric and telephone lines than any storm of recent years. The village escaped however, the only damage being a large plate glass window at the store of the Bean & Fox Co., which was blown in during the storm.

At the home of Bert Sanborn near Skillington the alto attached to the barn was torn away by the wind and completely wrecked. A large tree about 15 feet at the rear of the stable was uprooted and another tree at the back of the house was blown over onto the roof of the house but did no damage.

An elm tree measuring 11 feet and nine inches in circumference was uprooted and fell to the ground at the home of Herman Mason. This tree was an old landmark, being over 100 years old and was much prized by the family.

Huge limbs were blown from trees in many sections of the village and vicinity, and in some places trees were blown across the road.

At the home of Clyde Brooks on the Middle Intervale road, one of the windows in the living room was shattered as a result of the lightning striking the screen. The family were sitting in the room at the time but no one was injured, and no further damage was done.

Telephone service was disabled in many of the surrounding localities as the result of trees being blown on the wires and in many instances telephone poles were broken. Electric lights went out at the beginning of the storm and complete service was not resumed until Sunday forenoon.

BREAK AT CITIZEN OFFICE

About three o'clock Wednesday morning two would-be desperadoes were interrupted in their attempt to open the safe at the Citizen office by Officer Rand. He heard sounds in the vicinity of the building and while approaching the office they made their escape through the back door through which they had entered, running to a car parked on Broad Street.

Their mode of operations seems to indicate that they were new at the work as their greatest accomplishment was removing the handle and dial from the safe door. At any rate country newspaper offices seldom are afflicted with burglars of any description. Doubtless a much more serious loss would have resulted but for the efficiency of Mr. Rand.

A window at Crockett's Garage was forced open sometime the same night, but no damage was done, and nothing has been missed as yet.

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE

A large crowd capped the performance of a mock trial, breach of promise case, which was held at O'Brien Hall, Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Chautauqua Club. The case was heard by J. E. Norton of Waterville, Me., took the part of the plaintiff's attorney. Many heart bits were seen as the production was a highly entertaining one.

The cast was as follows:

Plaintiff, Henry W. Carter

Defendant, E. E. Norton

Attorney for Plaintiff, E. E. Norton

Attorney for Defendant, E. E. Norton

Witnesses, Mrs. Lenora Howe, Dr. H. Thibault, Mrs. W. H. Thurston, Dr. C. Rowe, E. H. Rowland

Jury, L. W. Hanson, Mrs. E. E. Norton, Fred Edwards, Mrs. E. E. Norton, Arthur Carter, Tom Brown, Clarence Hall, Arthur Herbert, Mrs. Clarence Hall, A. E. Chapman, E. E. Russell, Mrs. P. O. Brock

DRIVER HAS NARROW ESCAPE WHEN TRUCK RUNS WILD

What came near being a serious accident occurred the first of this week when the bolt in the connecting rod of the brakes dropped out on a truck owned and driven by Kenneth Benson. The truck was loaded with pigs and when Mr. Benson pitched over the Bryant hill, South Woodstock, he and the brakes were gone and he started down the hill at a swift rate, the truck swerved so he could not keep it in the road and when about half way down the hill it left the road, tipped over, throwing Mr. Benson through the windshield. The truck then caught on fire and was nearly burned up; it was insured. Mr. Benson escaped injury but was quite badly shaken up.

LOCAL SCOUT TROOP MAY BE ORGANIZED

If enough local boys are interested, it is likely that a troop will be formed in town this season. Boys interested should notify either Herbert R. Benn, Eugene Van Den Kerkhof or H. C. Rowe, who will explain the work required to qualify for Scouting. It is hoped that the boys will show their appreciation of this opportunity, as a troop of boys learning the principles of Scouting is an asset to any community.

LAUGHS SOAR AS OLD CRUSTY TAKES THE AIR

According to critics who have seen the play, W. L. Radcliffe certainly picked a good one when he secured the Broadway riot "Old Crusty Takes the Air" for his Chautauqua entertainers this season. In spite of "talkie" competition, "Old Crusty" packed 'em in at pre-war prices in New York while many a prominent Broadway playhouse remained lonesomely deserted. As a prominent critic recently said: "A good play can stand any kind of competition. But it must be intensely and humanly interesting from start to finish with plenty of spontaneous humor and constant heart throbs."

These lines exactly describe "Old Crusty Takes the Air", which features the second evening of the coming Chautauqua engagement. Built around a modern subject—aviation—this play is said to rise to new heights of comedy drama. Swift—acrobatic action is the keynote of a stirring performance that aside from split-second laugh action, contains a vibrant plot that is strikingly up-to-date in material and treatment.

"Old Crusty" is a shrewd, but conservative business man of the old school. He's against this "new fangled" aeroplane business and expresses a determined desire to remain firmly upon the earth. But he has a beautiful daughter—who is decidedly modern, and just here is where the action starts, for the young lady is fond of aviation, and particularly fond of a rising young aviator of her acquaintance. "Old Crusty" operates the local traction company, and when an aviation transportation concern moves in and offers opposition there's plenty of excitement—especially when the old man learns that his daughter is mixed up in the rival business. Just how the fight ends and the girl is won is something that everybody wants to know from start to finish. There's not a single pause in interest and humor until the curtain is rung down on the final scene.

This play is a comedy classic that you will remember for years. The laughs crack so quickly and so constantly that you hardly get a chance to draw a breath. And just when you get to the point that laughing seems monotonous, you are swept off your feet by a rithuming line that doubles you up all over again. The action never stops or lets up for a minute. I can't begin to tell you how much fun you can have at the home of Mrs. Francis H. Row, and at the box office in Wm. Eldridge's garage. Seats must be obtained at M. C. Brown & Co.'s. Radcliffe's show all entries are free and everyone is cordially invited to exhibit and to see the show. Proceeds will go to the benefit of the Chautauqua Club. Seats in advance, for collection of how many seats in advance, will be sold under 10 cents, and for the benefit of the Chautauqua Club, for at not over 75 cents.

Enman, while the congratulations went to Franklin and Arlene Enman. Refreshments of ice cream, birthday cake and cookies were served after which music and singing were enjoyed.

SEVERAL AUTO SMASHES OVER WEEK END

Man Seriously Injured at North Bethel Saturday

While attempting to pass a large truck near Locke Mills, Saturday afternoon, a Hapmobile touring car driven by Bernard Carver of Westbrook left the road and plunged several yards into the marsh at the edge of the road. In the car with Mr. Carver were his family and his father, Capt. Judson Carver. None of the party received serious injuries although Mrs. Carver and the Captain received first aid at a local doctor's office. The car was badly damaged.

Later the same day a Chevrolet touring car driven by Floyd Wardwell of Wilton failed to complete the turn at Swan's Corner and collided with a telephone pole. A passenger in the car picked up on the road was unharmed, but Wardwell was taken to the Farmington hospital, sustaining bad cuts about the throat and back as well as broken ribs and other injuries.

Sunday a Ford coupe operated by Lawrence Vallancourt of Berlin, left the road near Edwin York's at North Bethel. A lady in the car was painfully bruised about the knees when thrown against the dash. The car was not badly smashed.

SMITH-BROWN

A very quiet wedding took place July 18th at 2 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Brown, when their daughter, Ruth E., became the bride of Noel V. W. Smith of Northampton, Mass.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. A. Edwards, of the Congregational church, using the double ring service. Only the immediate family were present.

The bride was married in her traveling dress of navy blue georgette, with hat and coat to match.

The wedding presents were many and valuable.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of the Providence Technical High School and Rhode Island State College. At present he is in the Agricultural Department of the Smith Agricultural School at Northampton, Mass.

Mrs. Smith is a graduate of Gould Academy, Melrose, Dressmaking School and the special course in domestic art at Framingham Normal School. She has been a teacher of domestic art at the Northampton Continuation School for three years.

Immediately after the service Mr. and Mrs. Smith left by auto for a short wedding trip. They will be at home after August 18th at 8 Fifth Avenue, Northampton, Mass.

Along the Concrete

Earliest Hawaiian Map

Discovered in England

The first recorded map of the Hawaiian Islands has been brought to light in England, identified authentically and acquired for the Archives of Hawaii, a territorial institution says the San Francisco Chronicle.

This map was drawn by Thomas Edgar, master of the sailing ship Discovery, which accompanied the Resolution, flagship of the famous James Cook, on the explorer's voyage to Hawaii. Cook brought his ship to anchor at Waimanalo, Island of Kauai, in January, 1778, and about this time the map was made by Edgar. The log of the Discovery, nearly all written by Edgar, was recently identified in England, and was accompanied by various maps and drawings.

Edgar, as well as Cook, drew into his maps the details of only those portions of land that were seen, indicating other supposed parts by hazy outlines. The Hawaiians had no map when the first white man came. They had no written language, yet were remarkably skilled mariners, traversing thousands of miles of open sea in their large canoes, steering by the stars, and with extraordinary knowledge of practical navigation.

No Freedom of Worship

Under Peter Stuyvesant

Early in his administration Peter Stuyvesant issued a proclamation forbidding the people to assemble for any religious service other than that of the Dutch Reformed church, which was the established church in the fort, writes P. B. Cole in the New York Times, in telling "The Story of New York."

This law was vigorously enforced. Stuyvesant banished from the colony a Lutheran minister who had come from Holland to minister to the large number of Lutherans in the colony and even imprisoned Lutheran parents who failed to have their children baptized in the Dutch Reformed church.

Stuyvesant's iron hand fell heaviest, however, upon the Quakers, a large number of whom had settled on Long Island, in Hempstead. In this settlement was Robert Hodgson, who began conducting Quaker meetings among his townfolk. Stuyvesant hated him to New Amsterdam, and without allowing Hodgson to speak in his own defense, sentenced him to two years hard labor or a fine of 500 guilders.

Bees and Their Owners

Entomologists hold that there is nothing to the common notion that honeybees recognize the beekeeper and distinguish him from other individuals. Although some bees latched late in the fall surmise the winter, the average life of a worker bee during the active honey season is only about six weeks, two of which are spent in the hive. It is not likely that a beekeeper would examine a hive frequently enough to be recognized by creatures with such short lives even if they had the ability to distinguish between different human beings. Good beekeepers do not provoke bees so much as others do because they are familiar with their habits and know how to handle them.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Subjection of Wives

Some 400-year-old rules for handling wives have been published in London in connection with the new book on Rabelais.

The rules were drawn up by Titraqueau, friend of Rabelais, who had considerable experience with wives. First of all, he sets forth the dicta that "woman is man's inferior."

Having established his premise, Titraqueau goes on to say, "She is not to be struck or mistreated in any way."

"The wife is to be educated by example and by caresses mingled with severity. She may be threatened when necessary."

Oyster Cultivation

Oysters are now planted and cultivated like so much corn or turnips, Herbert P. Prytherch of the United States Bureau of Fisheries tells us that the oyster industry of the United States now constitutes its most valuable fishery, yielding annually about 73,000 tons of food, employing over 65,000 persons, and producing each year a crop valued at over $14,000,000 as it is taken from the water. It is conducted, he says, in every season state from Cape Cod to the Rio Grande and from Puget sound to San Francisco.

Ascribed to Franklin

"Ca Ira" was a popular song of the French revolution. The words are of uncertain origin, one version probably being the composition of Lacroix, a street singer. The air was a popular cavillon by Ruccart, and a favorite of Marie Antoinette's. French writers say that Benjamin Franklin in speaking of the American revolution often used the expression "Ca Ira," which means "It Will Succeed." The phrase was caught up by the French.

SIGNS O' THE TIMES

By James F. Hayes

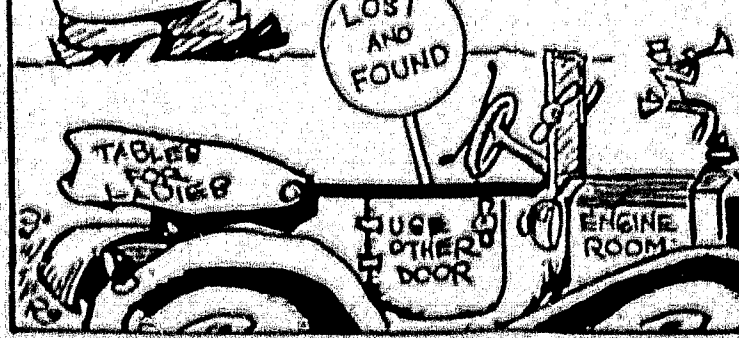

Hey, poet, drop those dusty rhymes; What are the good signs of the times?

Each sinner and sinner is good for a snicker With pictures and messages rare— "10,000 Jolts—danger!" And "No, I'm a stranger!" And "Bustle—handle with care!"

And did you say the raincoats glow With wisecracks everyone should know?

Yes, but They have labels And cartoons and fables Like "Where have we met?" and "I've tried!" And "Thanks, I've had plenty!" And "Ten degrees cooler inside!"

WEST PARIS

Mrs. Edwin Kay and sons, Edwin and Douglas, and Helen Gould, are spending a week at Old Orchard. Dr. Kay spends a little time each week with his family.

Mrs. Earle R. LeBay and sons spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Barden, while their new home in Portland was being made ready for them.

Mrs. Ella Barrows Young of Erie, Penn., was the guest of Mrs. F. T. Penley last week. Mrs. Young called on relatives and old friends. Mrs. Young was the daughter of the late James H. Barrows, who was among the earlier workers in the Universalist church in West Paris, whose services were being held in a school house or hall, and it gave her great pleasure to be able to attend church service and social gathering in the present well equipped church.

Services closed at the Universalist church, Sunday, July 13. There was a large attendance. Friends were present from Massachusetts, Auburn, Lewiston, Livermore, Bryant's Pond, and twelve miles from Norway.

Miss Edith Emery of Augusta is visiting her mother, Mrs. Edna Emery.

Lewis J. Mann is at Ferry Beach attending the sessions of the Young People's Christian Union and Sunday School.

Muriel Scribner has been at Ferry Beach during young people's week.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin L. Bowker were in town Wednesday and Thursday on business, and called on relatives.

Mrs. Lena Sewall Herick entertained at tea Mrs. Adney Tuell, Mrs. George Robinson, and Mrs. Henry Brook, last Tuesday. Mrs. Tuell was the guest of honor, as she has sufficiently recovered her strength to be out after her long illness. Mrs. Herick used dishes which were her grandmother's and are more than one hundred years old, also a homespun tablecloth which is perhaps older.

Ambrose Swift visited his son Gerald Swift and family Monday, and called upon his sister, Mrs. Belle Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Herick of Portland are visiting at Freeland Herick's.

Mrs. Margaret Kane of Portland is staying at Mrs. Kate Whitman's.

Little Thomas Riley of Rumford is visiting his grandfather, Frank Webb.

Saturday evening a heavy thunder storm accompanied by wind passed over West Paris. Trees were blown down in several places and on Main street traffic was cut off for several hours by live wires and a fallen tree. It was necessary to send an auto to Norway for men to shut off the electric current as telephone communication was also out of order. The village was unable to have electric power until noon on Sunday.

Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes and Mrs. Lyndell Farr went to Ferry Beach, Saturday for the week of Sunday School religious instruction.

Mrs. Rose Thurlow and niece of Lancaster, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Braden of Sumner were calling on Mrs. Elvosa Dennen, Sunday.

Mrs. W. M. Chandler is spending the week at her old home in Sumner. Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Jacobs have returned from a delightful motor trip in Northern Maine and Quebec.

HANOVER

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barrows of Gorham, N. H., were Saturday guests of Mrs. Rosina Silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hardy and Mr. and Mrs. Priestly of Sanford were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Dyer. Mrs. Hardy remained for several weeks' visit.

Mrs. Azalea McDougal and Mrs. Rosina Silver motored to Gorham, Sunday, to spend several days with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Russell entertained their cousin and family recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Merrill and family are enjoying this week among relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cummings and Barbara are spending the week at their camp at Silver Lake. Mr. Cummings drives back and forth to his work each day.

Blanche Russell motored to Cape Porpoise, Monday, returning late with her sister, Mrs. Philip Redmond and family, who will spend their vacation in town. Clement Worcester drove them in his car.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Powers and son returned from Wisconsin, Friday.

The Ladies' Circle of the Universalist church of Rumford Point will hold their annual sale and supper at Union Hall, Hanover, Tuesday evening, July 23.

STILL SPENDING FOR WAR OF 1812

United States Pays Pensions to Nine Widows and One Daughter.

Washington.—The 118th anniversary of the formal declaration of war by the United States against Great Britain finds Uncle Sam still paying for that conflict at the rate of $500 per month.

There are nine widows of soldiers of that war yet living and who are each drawing a pension of $50 per month, while there is a daughter of such a soldier, Esther Ann Morgan of Independence, Ore., who is drawing a similar sum. The nine widows include Lydia Ann Graham, Brushy Run, W. Va.; Emma Arnout, Ashville, N. Y.; Marion Clark, Iowa City, Iowa; Mary Williams, Philadelphia, Pa.; Arminde Anderson, Cedar Grove, Va.; Mary Isgrig, Cincinnati, Ohio; Caroline King, East Aurora, N. Y., and Emma Mann, Greenbush, Mass.

Nearly all of these widows are above ninety years of age, some have reached the century mark and most of them are feeble physically. Mrs. Graham, Brushy Run, W. Va., is ninety-one, the youngest of the group which remains the last living link connecting the present with the war of 1812 years ago. She was the second wife of Isaac Graham, a fighter in the Virginia militia.

Mrs. Williams of Philadelphia is ninety-six. Her husband, John Williams, was studying medicine at Baltimore when war was declared. He enlisted in Moore's militia company, fought with Andrew Jackson at New Orleans and then resumed his studies. He practiced medicine until his death in 1864 at the age of seventy.

John R. Clark, husband of Marion Clark of Iowa City, Iowa, was a private in McClellan's militia company of Massachusetts.

Samuel Arnout, husband of Emma Arnout of Ashville, N. Y., was a private in Parker's company of New York militia.

Cost $6,000 a Year.

Naturally, the beneficiaries of these nine soldiers represent marriages contracted by the veterans late in their lives, while the brides were young in years. The fact that the treasury of the United States is still paying out $6,000 per annum to these pensioners reveals in a lucid manner the persistence of war costs of this nature, long after the conflict has ended and the lives of the participants are no more.

The government of the United States has paid out in pensions since 1790, the sum of $3,000,000,000. The War of 1812 has cost so far $47,000,000. There were 65,000 claims filed, of which 30,000 were by soldiers and 35,000 by widows. The last soldier of the War of 1812 was William Cronk, who died in 1903, yet 25 years later nine widows are still living and it may be several years yet before Uncle Sam can close the books on that conflict.

High School Girl's Wit

Lands Two Men in Jail

Los Angeles.—Marguerite, sixteen-year-old high school girl, does not like intoxicated drivers. So when an erratically driven machine crashed into her automobile at a street intersection Miss Brown was considerably agitated.

Her agitation increased when the two occupants of the car laughingly refused her command to wait until policemen, summoned by her sister, arrived.

So she stepped to the running board of the automobile, driven by Albert W. Cecil, forty, and snatched the keys from the ignition lock, efficiently anchoring the car until the arrival of Policemen Pritchett and Bolannan.

Cecil was taken to the city prosecutor's office and booked on a charge of drunk driving, and his companion, Edward N. Johnston, thirty-two, was charged with violation of the Wright act, three bottles of alleged whisky having been found on his person.

Bird Facts Learned

Evidence that the California condor, largest of flying birds, once ranged well to the east of its present habitat in California, has been found in Conkling cavern, N. M., the celebrated bone cave where human remains were discovered associated with fossils of strange animals. One wing bone was identified as that of a California condor by Dr. Hildegarde Howard, of the Los Angeles museum, whither the bones from the cavern have been removed. In all, the cave yielded about 100 bones of birds.

Victory

Four-year-old Dorothy is still having difficulties with the English language. The word "handkerchief" is one she constantly evades, insisting on using the shorter and much simpler word "mo."

One evening when her parents were entertaining company, Dorothy's synonym for handkerchief was the topic of discussion. Dorothy, who was well aware of this and wished to appear grown up, interrupted: "Mother, I ain't gonna say 'mo' no more; I'm gonna say 'handkerchief'."

Not for General Public

The general public cannot draw books from the Library of Congress. This privilege is limited to congressmen, persons in public office and a certain few engaged in special research work. There is, however, a system of interlibrary loans, whereby individuals requiring a book that cannot be ordinarily secured can obtain it from the Library of Congress by arrangement with the librarian of their own public library. Such books cannot be taken to the home of the borrower, but must be consulted in the public library.

Country and Town Speech

"The speech of the old, especially the country-bred, is still full of meat, but that of the young townsman is a very thin brew, with a kind of cheap chicken soup as its chief ingredient. Lord Chesterfield, who was of the opinion that a national proverb was not becoming to the conversation of a man of breeding, may sleep peacefully in his grave."—Ernest Weekly's "Proverbs Considered" in the Atlantic Monthly.

Mixture of Many Tongues

English as spoken in this country is derived from many sources. Our speech has a Saxon base. Approximately 20 per cent of the words in conversational use are derived from Latin. We have many literary and ecclesiastical Latin terms and technical words derived from the Greek. A greater part of our household and poetical words are Saxon. There is a strong French influence originally introduced by the conquest of the island of Britain by William the Conqueror, the duke of Normandy. There are also in our language numerous words brought by colonists from the Netherlands and also Spanish and Indian words.

Important Vitamin

In testing foods for vitamin C in the laboratory, guinea pigs are fed a basal diet complete except for this vitamin, and then given measured amounts of the food in question. If the animal thrives and grows well, the food is probably a good source of vitamin C; if the animal develops symptoms of scurvy—sore, stiff joints, a tendency to hemorrhage, sore gums, loosening of the teeth and fragile bones, the food under test probably is deficient in vitamin C. Similar symptoms are found in human beings, whose diet has lacked the foods that supply this important vitamin.

Snake Held Sacred by Hopi Tribe of Indians

Battle Mountain had a snake which the Hopi Indians consider to be white. It is sacred to the white tribe. The Indians would not think of harming a snake. They are not snake worshipers, but each year during the month of August they hold a snake dance to which all the creatures are sacred, and the snake is a very religious creature, and is given for good fortune and a sacrifice for the Hopi people.

One gets a lot of understanding of the character of the Hopi people in a very short time of the country and people so which upon their camp. The water is sacred to the Hopi people and is held in the hands above and beneath the earth and the snake is chosen as the most intermediary between the Hopi people and the gods who live in the water.

One does not wonder so much at the fact of the Hopi in prayer being answered when very often to the praise of the Hopi people come up. Many times the operators get a good dream before they can get down off the camp or even before they have reached the ceremony. Legend II. Matsuda in March and April.

Funeral Honors Would Have Astonished Auntie

A dear old New Englander, the daughter of the first and abiding friend of a former health resort, where she had come in the last stage of a lingering illness. Her husband, a native of the town to be buried, as it was her last wish—in the quiet little country churchyard. His surprise can be imagined when, on opening the casket, he beheld the features of the departed form of an army general in full regiments, when he remembered that he had been in the same place and time as his aunt. At once he sent a telegram to the general's heirs, explaining the situation and requesting instructions. They came back as follows: "Give the general a full funeral, with full military honors, six brass bands, speech by congressman and governor and saluting guns."—Pittsburgh Mail.

Willy—The Clerk

By RUBY DOUGLAS
(Copyright.)

LILLA MADDOX went to the telephone table that stood under the stairway in the rear hall of the old Maddox homestead out on the Bradley road.

To the average young woman of twenty-eight, this would have meant nothing. Lilla had come with her carefully compiled grocery list in her hand to order the day's necessities over the telephone.

After she had called the number she wanted, trembling for the voice to answer.

"Hello," came in mellow tones across the wire.

"Good morning," said Lilla, "who is this, please?"

And always the same answer would come: "It's Willy—the clerk."

Then Lilla would proceed, asking in detail about each item. Was the butter fresh? Were the oranges sweet enough for mother? Would the boy come early?

Lilla's mother had been an invalid for years and the entire responsibility of the household had fallen on the girl's shoulders. She seldom left the house, and perhaps that is why the voice of "Willy—the clerk" at the telephone store where she traded in an adjoining village had become so important in her daily life. She had never seen the owner of the voice, but she gathered from the even tone, day in and day out, that Willy led about as exciting a life as she herself.

After she had rung off each morning and had replaced the telephone receiver, she would about her task of house keeping and nursing with a feeling that the day's pleasure was over.

One morning the old village doctor came downstairs a little more brisk than usual.

"My dear," he began, "I find that your mother will need a stimulant to day in the shape of this prescription. She needs a little kick."

"But—am you going back to the village, doctor, or are you on your country rounds?" she asked, perplexed, for a moment, as to how she was to get the medicine from the drugstore. Her father was away for a few days and there was no one to go on the errand.

"Ah! the grocer comb! this way, maybe?" asked the resourceful old doctor.

"Oh, yes, of course. I'll call them right away," said Lilla, her face lighting up. She was so accustomed to her mother's "weaker" days that they no longer depressed her.

The doctor said good by and left Lilla at the telephone.

She found that the delivery boy had left for the Bradley road section but Willy—the clerk—insured her that he could find some way to get the prescription filled and delivered to her.

Inside of an hour Lilla opened the door to greet a tall, good-looking man of perhaps thirty years.

"Miss Maddox?" she asked.

Lilla knew the voice, at once. "Why—yes," she answered.

"This is the prescription from Wilton. The doctor asked me to explain to you that you must be careful to keep the rest of each. Perhaps the doctor told you. Too much of it would be a mistake."

"What's that?" Lilla asked.

Lilla, adding, "remembering that the man had made it a trip of four miles for her father's horse and that the least she could do would be to show her appreciation."

"I was only told to be a service to you," he hesitated for an instant and then went on. "I have rather wanted to see Miss Maddox for a couple of years. After so much telephone conversation, I—well, I just wanted to see what you were like."

He laughed and Lilla wondered what he had beneath the twinkle in his eyes. She found herself liking him as well as she had learned to like his voice.

"You've been with Walter & Co. a long time," she said.

Willy nodded. "So long," he laughed.

"That I am now—Walter & Co." Lilla was taken completely aback.

"Then—"

He cut her short. "Yes—I know what you would say. But when I started in at the grocery I was 'Willy—the clerk' and it became such a habit with me to answer to that name when the phone that I have continued to with certain customers, just for a time."

"And you are—"

"William Worcester," he said, smiling. "I hope that it won't make any difference." There was deep concern in his tone and in his eyes.

"Oh, no," Lilla hastened to reassure him.

"I hope your mother will be better," he said as he left.

Lilla thanked him. How her heart thumped as she tried to tell her mother of the kindness of the clerk! For some reason or other she did not reveal more of the story.

But it was not many months later, it was necessary for her mother to know all. Lilla and "Willy the clerk" were engaged to be married.

"But remember," Lilla explained, "her father one night when he had come out to sit with her and play chess. It was only the voice of Willy I had in love with."

MRS. S. M. AUSTIN, 87 DIES, BURIED ON HOME FARM LAND

The Waterloo, Wis., Courier

One of the community's keenest and best cherished old settlers, Mrs. S. M. Austin, was laid to rest in Portland cemetery Tuesday afternoon, her death having occurred at her home, corner of Harrison and Polk streets, Sunday, July 6. Her brother, Mr. A. T. Powers, who had been notified of her failing, and later of her illness, had hastened here from his home in Bethel, Maine, bringing his wife and son, Junior, but arriving two hours too late to see her.

Services were conducted at the home Tuesday afternoon by Rev. A. L. Tucker of the Methodist church. Miss Nettie Stokes sang two solos. In The Garden and Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. Bearers were Sam Austin, Edmund; Manley and Lewis Austin, Eliza Ernest and Burr Austin and Clyde Conklin, local.

Julia Elvira Powers was born Oct. 18, 1843 in Hanover, Maine, attended school there and later was graduated from the high school at Bethel, Me. In 1868, or thereabouts, she accompanied her cousin, George Powers, to Wisconsin, and learned the millinery business in the shop of Mrs. Eli Foster.

Mrs. John White, who at the same time was a dressmaker in the same shop, remembers that when she, Mrs. White, left Wisconsin to teach school in Iowa, Mrs. Powers and a Mrs. Georgia Gilbert started a business for a few years, she became the bride of the cousin with whom she had come west, George Powers, in 1872, and they were happy on the Portland farm a part of which is now occupied by the Portland cemetery. In the early eighties, they sold their farm, and purchased the home which has been theirs throughout this half century since that time, and from which she passed on to a celestial home.

Mr. Powers died in 1893, and in 1894 Mrs. Powers gave her hand in marriage to Mr. S. M. Austin. After his death in 1908, she kept up her home employing a housekeeper. The late Miss Lucy Stamm remained with her for many years.

Mrs. Austin had been failing for a month or more, and had been confined to her bed for eleven days before her death. The last week, she was under the care of Miss Mary Groh of Columbia, assisted by her housekeeper, Miss Leta Schaefer from near Recesseville. She was unconscious the last two days.

Although she never could get out much, the small injury to her limb received when she was a small child incapacitating her for getting about by herself, she was a member and supporter of the M. E. church, and a temporary member of the Waterloo Woman's club. She enjoyed romping, and took as much interest in all that the world was doing and so well remembered what she read and what her friends told her of the happenings in the community, that she was on interesting a conversationalist on many, more trifling than she. Her passing from the neighborhood will be a real loss to many who have enjoyed her fine intellect and spirit of good-will.

Mrs. Austin is survived by two brothers, Alfred T. of Bethel, Me., and Walter B. Powers in Dover, N. H. She has greatly enjoyed the former brother, his wife and family and appreciated the kindness to her when she made the effort to visit them, sometimes making her home with them for months at a time. They expect to leave the last of the week for their home.

Mr. Powers remembered a poem written by the late Miss Loretta Howe, a girlhood neighbor of Mrs. Austin, which is beautifully appropriate for the close of this quiet life:

PUT OUT THE LIGHTS

Put out the lights,
She will not need them more;
The long dark night has passed away.
The morning breaks so calm, so still,
Put out the lights,—she sleeps,
She sweetly sleeps, and all is well.

Put out the lights,
She will not need them more;
The faithful watchmen by the bed of pain
Have no more dread, or fear, of coming day.
Their care had ministered for her care,
She sweetly sleeps, and all is well.

Put out the lights,
She will not need them more;
In that fair land beyond one earthly sight
Its blent inhabitants are no more sick,
There is no night, or pain, or death.
Put out the lights, she sleeps,
She sweetly sleeps, and all is well.

THE COBURNS AND "THE PLUTOCRAT"

The combination of the Coburns and "The Plutocrat" brings together an interesting group of people of the theatre at Lakewood, week of July 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Coburn have been married and playing together for some 23 years, which is a very long time in the theatre. Mrs. Coburn is from the middle west, Mr. Coburn from the South.

As young players they organized their own company and gained great fame and popularity by playing the Shakespearean repertoire for all the major universities in the country. Fifteen years ago they determined to do only modern plays and, at periods house in their own theatre, they have starred in "The Yellow Jacket," "The Better Role," "The Bronx Express," "French Leave," "The Farmer's Wife," "The Right Age to Marry," "So This is London" and, last season, were in New York for a long engagement in "The Plutocrat" which they do at Lakewood.

Arthur Goodrich, the author of "The Plutocrat" is an old hand at playwriting, and a successful one. He made a fine play from Browning's "The Ring and the Book," acted by Walter Hampden as "Don Quixote," a version of "Richard" and "How's Your Health." His dramatic version of "The Plutocrat" depended as much on his own device as the Tarkington novel.

Booth Tarkington, whose book "The Plutocrat" is the background for the comedy in which the Coburns appear, is an author whose works seem to lend themselves to dramatization. "The Man from Home" will be well remembered, and "Monsieur Deconaire" has done long service. Of course "Seventeen" and numerous other successes reflecting youth are always popular. In "The Plutocrat" Tarkington sought to answer, in a way, the attacks on "Main Street" so popular two or three years ago, and this effort is admirably realized.

JIDDA IS FRONT DOOR OF MECCA

Scene of Recent Disaster in Which Moslem Pilgrims Lost Lives.

Washington.—Jidda, venerable Red Sea port in the harbor of which more than one hundred Moslems recently lost their lives aboard a burning pilgrim ship, is "the front door of Mecca," famous heart of the Moslem world, according to a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Jidda's wall, inclosing about 30,000 Moslems, and a mere handful of infidels (non-Moslems), rises above the sun-baked eastern shore of the Red Sea, about midway between Aden and Suez," says the bulletin. "Coral reefs stretch menacing arms into the broad natural Jidda harbor; and large vessels, bearing thousands of pilgrims annually from Africa, Asia, and even the East Indies, anchor beyond these obstacles."

Visited by Few "Infidels."

"A thrilling ride on a choppy sea in small craft; a short stay at an island quarantine station if one is healthy and clean; and other short boat rides, and the traveler sets foot on the Jidda quay, a feat that only a few 'infidels' have accomplished, for Jidda does not extend a Gothamlike welcome to non-Moslems, nor does the sun and dust of the city's streets attract many curious travelers. The infidel population, most of which is engaged in business for foreign establishments and foreign governments, numbers about 50.

"A bright Arabian sun beating upon the white wall and the long two-story white customs house which introduces Jidda, causes the traveler to squint and, unless he possesses sun glasses, the wrinkles about his eyes become deeper before he has lived long in the city.

"In the tortuous streets beyond the customs building, bordering houses, nearly all of them balconied, offer some shade; but these choice spots are often occupied by loitering natives, some enjoying their gurgling water pipes, some discussing the latest news, and others, squatting at the feet of their sheikhs who are for hire. Now and then one comes upon one of these stubborn quadrupeds with nose, neck, and the area around the eyes painted in such a manner that they would make splendid partners for western circus towns.

"Here and there Jidda streets open into small squares. The traveler, who has been blindly working his way through clouds of dust raised by shuffling camels' hoofs, heaves a sigh of relief on entering such a broad breathing space. Shortly, however, he finds that the square affords merely a larger area than the streets for caravans to assemble in, a broader area of dust to be stirred with every movement of an animal or a human being, and a greater opportunity for the sun's rays to have an unhampered thrust at already parched pedestrians.

Camels Are Local Taxicabs.

"To see Jidda travelers must walk or mount a camel, for automobiles have not yet invaded the taxi field of this city. One may hire a place in a wretched, a wooden frame fitted over a camel's hump with a tray on each side forming seats for passengers. The baggage is kept in place mainly by balance. The natives often are amused when an uninitiated visitor in one side of a slungout thoughtlessly leaves his seat and his companion in the other is precipitated to the ground.

"Perhaps the most comfortable spots in Jidda are in the bazars where extending roofs shade the street, allowing only thin pencils of sunlight to reach the human mass below. In one bazaar street the traveler rubs elbows with black Moslems from Africa, deep-tanned Arabians, and yellow, brown, and reddish-brown Asiatics. Many are permanent residents; others are here to fulfill one of the greatest aspirations in the life of a Moslem—a visit to Mecca."

Kerguelen Islands Boast Lobsters Three Feet Long.

Brest.—The Austral, returned from the Kerguelen Islands, where her crew hunted sea elephants for their oil, brought back a novelty for the Paris market, lobster fished in the crater of St. Paul. The lobster was canned on the ship during its voyage. These lobsters are the largest in the world, some of them a yard long.

Drunk Gets Peevish and Wrecks Bastille.

Bethel, Maine.—Bethel's new city jail was a wreck recently after George Lyons, arrested on a drunkenness charge, vented his rage on the place of confinement. He splintered chairs and tables and shattered 83 panes of glass.

Jokesters Handcuff Newly Wedded Pair.

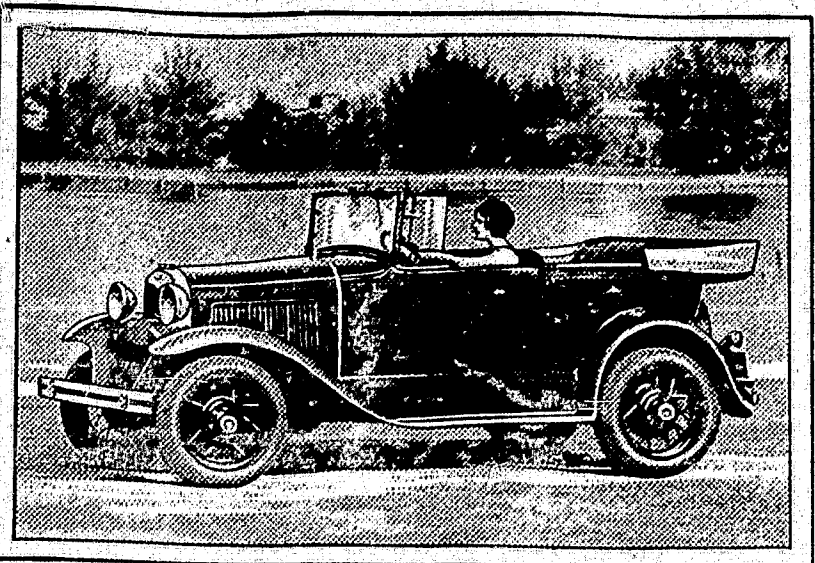

Pueblo, Colo.—A newly married couple was literally bound together by "after-marriage ties." Their friends handcuffed them "to give them a good start in wedded life." Police released them after they appealed for aid.

Fish Anyhow.

New Ford Car Wins Favor

Ford Phaeton

THE Ford Phaeton, shown above, is equally popular as a family car and as a sport car for young people. The seating arrangement provides for the driver and one passenger in front and three passengers in the rear. Seats are upholstered in two-tone creosolene grain artificial leather.

The top is of the quick collapsing type, easily handled by one person, and folds flat. The windshield, of Triplex shatter-proof glass, is of the folding type and can be laid flat forward. The windshield wings fold over it, emphasizing the sport effect of the car.

Columbus Might Have Saved Mayan Culture

If the United States lacks culture, it can be blamed upon Columbus, according to Gregory Mason, explorer, writing in Country Home. Had Columbus followed his original route on his subsequent trips, the civilization that is now the United States might have been founded upon the Mayan race, which represents the oldest civilization in the world.

Mason declares that Columbus, on his fourth voyage in 1502, encountered a Maya merchant off the coast of Honduras, but instead of going to the merchant's land, he turned his prow in another direction and left it to despoiling Spaniards of another day to find and crush the last remnants of a great civilization that once thrived there.

The Mayas, says the writer, were the most highly civilized of all the red-skinned natives of America before the white men came, and might have provided the ready-made foundation for a new white race, whereas the hardy settlers of the north had to carve out their own foundations from the wilderness.

"Medicine Woman" Still Has Faith of Mexicans

More curious types, echoes out of the long past, exist in Mexico than in any other country in Latin America. One of these is the "medicine woman" who, more than four centuries ago, was an institution through the land and since then all have continued to depend on her to fight disease, real or imaginary. But the medicine woman has ever been more than a vendor of medicinal herbs. She was and still is believed to possess the power of witchcraft and this power she gives to certain of the herbs she offers for sale. She is, therefore, a strange and potentially important personage in the lives of the masses of ignorant Mexican Indians and peasants and not infrequently she is held in respect by middle class families. The medicine woman is still an institution from one end of Mexico to the other, and where the native Indian languages are still spoken, approximately 30 per cent of Mexico, she has lost little if any of her pre-conquest prestige.

Dogwood Blossoms

The vagrant wild apples that fill our country Mays with bloom are English born and came before the quota laws with the daisy, the buttercup, the dandelion and the lilac, of which two famous American poems have been made. But the best of May is native, a shrub that knows the unfilial, a modest tree that seeks the light and screens the inner woodlands with ordered clusters of leafy candelabra from the oak branch to the meadow turf. In May in four pointed flame from green to white to tip of rose, its flowery candles are lit, and not even the rhododendron clusters hung over Allegheny torrents excel the lucid blossoms of the dogwood.—Henry Setdel Canby, in "American Estimates"

No Two Are Alike

In the Book of Job are words which forecast the discovery made so many centuries later that the finger prints of not two people in the world are alike. The words are in chapter 33: "He sealeth up the hand of every man, that all men may know his work." The text was quoted by a Scotland Yard official at an inquest at Portsmouth on the body of a man whose name and business had been unknown till prints of his fingers were sent to the finger print department in London. There they were identified, and the man's name and dwelling were made known. In 30 years 300,000 persons have thus been traced.

Popular Old Tune

The tune, "Listen to the Mocking Bird," was composed by Richard Milburn. The story is that Septimus Wenner induced Milburn to whistle this piece while Wenner wrote it down. The song was afterward published by Mr. Wenner in Philadelphia in 1825. It is interesting to know that the 1825 edition of the song reads, "Listen to the Mocking Bird; Music written by Richard Milburn, Words by Alice Hawthorne." Alice Hawthorne was one of the pseudonyms used by Mr. Wer-

Graphic Outlines of History

THE INAUGURATION OF WASHINGTON

When Washington was to be inaugurated, a great question arose as to whether it should be public or private. Various other questions came up as to how he should be sworn into office, for, as he was the first president, a precedent had to be made. The critics were somewhat displeased with Washington's costume, maintaining that wearing a sword seemed like an emblem of despotic rule. The knowledge that our service assumes the burden of the entire arrangements, greatly assists those who seek our professional aid.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Floyd Unwin, unusual in life's struggle, with his friend Howard Bettington, painter of some note, but not wealthy, had been with their college associates, Alfred Gibbons, financial magnate. Unwin produces written pledges which the three had taken while in college, to help each other in adversity, explaining that he needs financial assistance now for the education of his son, Bob, and daughter Mary. Gibbons scolds at the "legality" of the pledge, but agrees to make a check for $1000 to the treasurer of the organization. She is to call at his office next day.

CHAPTER II.—Bettington arranges to help his old friend Unwin by painting some pictures and selling them. Mary Unwin, twenty years old, is Edward Radway's private stenographer. She is a man of vast wealth, but a devoted mother. Her father, Mr. Gibbons, a man of great wealth, has been killed. She is now in the hands of a man named Radway, who is a man of great wealth. She is now in the hands of a man named Radway, who is a man of great wealth. She is now in the hands of a man named Radway, who is a man of great wealth.

and would have no shirkers. His story was curious. He had been an engineer on many ships, plying in many seas; but always he had been obliged to serve on vessels whose engines were worn out, whose machinery would invariably be on the point of giving way. Never in all his service had he shipped on a vessel whose engines were even passably good. Then, almost miraculously, he had been picked up by a man who knew his past misfortunes, held them club-like over his head, and brought to the engine room of the Albatross. It was not drink which made Kenzie weep when he saw the vertical, inverted, compound condensing engines, which took their steam from an Almy water-tube boiler. It was unbelievable joy. His dreams were realized. He was glad that Metzger, who knew next to nothing about marine engines, left him alone. No priest in the Gothic cathedral was more reverent than Kenzie before his church.

Sam and Metzger, flinging all curbs aside, started gambling. Each knew the other had money. Metzger was the better player, but he was handicapped by a certain fear of any tricky play. Sam interspersed his games with anecdotes of men he had punished dreadfully for cheating. Later raptures such as these cramped Metzger's style of play. Sam was not going to be such good picking as he hoped. Sam's favorite form of punishment, it seemed, was semi-strangulation. It was a risky punishment, Sam confessed, because in the heat of the moment one might go too far. "An you know it in a minute," Sam said. "There's something about a guy's face whose been squeezed a bit too hard, you won't never forget."

"Do me!" Metzger said petulantly. "Let us talk of something else." "Anything you say," Sam returned. "What about?" "There is only one subject," Metzger said; he kissed his hand airily and raised his black eyes to heaven: "Women!"

Sam reflected on this for a minute. It was not easily he shifted his base. This woman business had been settled hours ago, and he told Metzger no. They were to be kept in the fore part of the ship until Limon came in sight. It was only then that the services of the surgeon would be no longer indispensable. He chuckled heavily as he thought of the doctor's surprise. "All in good time," Sam declared. "No use hurrying."

Metzger was annoyed when Antonio Pereira, the cook whose name was enshrined in literature, came in with a plate of the same sort of caviare sandwiches he had been used to make for Radway.

Pereira was in the mood to talk of his conquests which had ranged through many seas. Metzger, usually interested in such matters, wished only to be left alone with Sam. It was almost midnight before the cook turned in.

"There is a man like me," Metzger said. "He has no use for caution. I tell you women love that kind. He has lived, while you—" Metzger shrugged his shoulders. "Poor Sam!" "What do you mean, 'poor Sam'?" said the other irritably. Sam was stirred to indignation. He poured forth accounts of his amours. He grew almost eloquent. But he still told his friend that his agreement with the navigator must be observed for safety's sake. Sam allowed Metzger to lure him on deck where they sprawled luxuriously on two great wicker chairs. Metzger set out to tempt his companion. Deliberately he spoke to stroke images of the shore's banish prudence. He pointed to the silhouette of Bettington's figure against the skyline in the distance.

"It doesn't worry me," said Metzger. "I'm all right, Sam. It's you I'm sorry for."

"What the hell is it?" Sam said pettishly. By this time he understood that Metzger considered him one to be pitied. The idea revolted him. "While he's up there—and he'll be there many hours—I know my woman is all right. But what do you know about the pretty little girl with dark flashing eyes? I'll tell you. She loves Hallett's nephew. They are young. You say Sam, are old; you are cautious, you are slow. Is she going to wait for you when younger men offer themselves? How long will it take to get to Limon? I will ask myself."

He came hurrying back from the bridge. "Seven days if the steam pressure is kept up. Let us say eight days. Eight nights like this to sit up here and think about her, Sam. Dido moi! If it were for her I longed, do you think I would sit waiting, waiting?"

Sam still fought for strength to resist this temptation. But Metzger's words were bringing his blood.

"You've got to wait yourself," he retorted. "I ain't the only one."

Metzger laughed in scorn. He pointed again to the man on the bridge. "I can afford to wait," he said. "There my rival stays. There he sleeps. But you! You 'Sparks' must laugh at you, Sam!"

"I'll break his neck," Sam said, flicking his thick, dry lips.

"In eight days' time. Do you hear me? That is your revenge. Is it to give him eight days down there with her, while you wait for Costa Rica to come in sight?"

Metzger burst into a peal of contemptuous laughter. The visions that were summoned by the tempter's suggestions awoke in Sam the desire to kill. "The door's locked," he said. "It's steel and hard to get through."

"Why give yourself that trouble? The doctor there has the key in his pocket. He'll do well enough in the chain locker," Metzger said that his words had fired Sam at last. "Of course, if you're afraid," he added, "well, then wait till we see Limon."

For a moment Metzger feared he was to be victim to Sam's sudden flaming anger. "Afraid of what?" he snarled. "Of the doctor's pretending he hasn't got the key."

When Sam scrambled to his feet Metzger's "no" and his careful plans seemed likely to work out. Metzger knew Sam's strength and brutal rage. Probably the doctor had no key; this Sam would not believe; inevitably there would come a fight and he did not think any man on board had a chance against Sam. And with the doctor removed his path would be easier. For the moment he concerned himself nothing with the ultimate destiny of the vessel. Petty caution: were nothing to him in such a moment as this.

Sam wasted no time in explanations. Like Metzger, he had forgotten caution and future dangers in his rage and jealousy. Bettington knew the intruder was dangerous. "Give me the key," Sam commanded.

"What key?" Bettington asked. "You know damn well. I want the key to where the women are."

"I have no key," Bettington said. Sam struck him across the mouth with the back of his monstrous hand. "You're a liar," he cried. "I'll have it, if I kill you."

Then, suddenly, without any preparation, Bettington struggling on deck with the enraged Sam. In a nearby chair Metzger in the moonlight watched eagerly.

Bettington dared not allow Sam to get those long sinuous arms about him. It was only the doctor's clever footwork and greater speed which enabled him to stem those savage rushes with continual jobs. He knew they would not win the battle for him.

He decided to change his tactics suddenly. There was a wrestling throw known as the "flying mare," which he had been shown by a Cornish miler in the Rhodope years before. For its execution not only considerable strength was needed, but accurate timing was equally an essential. Sam could not have weighed less than two hundred and fifty pounds, while Bettington was some sixty pounds less.

The ferocity of Sam's attacks was astounding. When the first burst of the assault did not bring him victory, the sailor, sobbing a little under the increasing pain of his bruised face, became more methodical. He saw that he must abandon this desire to beat Bettington to the deck with his flying mare and get a body hold.

Metzger looked at the doctor with a singular satisfaction. "I saw you kill him," said he, "and I shall tell the others what I witnessed."

He wondered how he could turn this to his own advantage. Accustomed to lying and suspecting others of dishonesty, he did not believe Bettington's words. Of course, he had the keys and would go below to be caressed and praised by Evelyn Radway for his victory. The thought was unbearable, enraging.

Metzger's knife flashed out. Nothing should keep the key from him. But as he raised the knife Bettington's fist caught him on the temple and knocked him down. Before he could regain his weapon the doctor had tossed it into the ocean. Metzger sat up on his haunches for a few seconds; he cursed himself for leaving the key in the doctor's hand.

"Your life is worth nothing," he cried, "climbing to his feet. 'In two minutes you will be as Sam is and I will go down and console her for your loss.'"

Bettington watched him race down the companion calling loudly for help. Obviously two minutes seemed a liberal computation as an estimate of the doctor's life span.

He made what haste he could to the locked door and called for instant admission. To remain outside was to be killed. To join the imprisoned four offered immediate respite, even though it might be a brief one.

Mrs. Radway opened the door; she darted inside and barred it. She looked at him in horror. He had forgotten that his face was bruised and bleeding.

A moment later there was a confused sound of shouting and a fusillade of bullets struck the steel bulkhead.

"You see how perfectly they trust me," he commented. He turned his head to see Crosby Todd hurrying toward him.

"They were after the doctor," Mrs. Radway said.

"I should feel happier if I thought that I was the only one needed," Bettington said soberly. He lowered his voice as he saw Mary and her brother. "They are outside ravening like wolves."

"Can they get in?" Evelyn Radway asked.

"I doubt it," he said, with an air of cheerfulness. "Not tonight, anyway." To the four he was confronting the weather seemed suddenly to have become rough. There was a perceptible difference in the motion of the Albatross.

"She isn't steering," Bettington explained. "She's wallowing in the rough of the sea, but there's no danger yet."

"Why did you leave the wheel if you are the only man capable of taking charge?" Todd demanded.

"Because a dead steersman would have been equally useless. Don't you understand that they want to kill me? I confess I don't see why, unless it is they have discovered I'm bent on helping you. First Sam came at me and then Metzger tried to knife me. I don't think they knew I had changed my course."

He saw that Mary shivered at the mention of Sam. The thought of his hand given her nightmare terrors.

"What reason did they give?" Todd asked. He was still convinced that there was an effort to dupe him.

"That they wanted the keys to this part of the yacht."

Bettington turned to Mary and said: "He had been killed, after all, by do something for Tubby (Limon's girl). Not again would Sam menace her."

"Sam is dead," he told her. "Metzger is in command and swore to get help and have me killed. That's why I had to burst in here. There was something a little better in his tale. I wish I could feel I was more well than."

CHAPTER X

Slivers to the Rescue

Of all those who made up the crew of the Albatross, none had been so thrilled with the day's happenings as Silvers. He possessed a boy's appetite for adventure. His earliest ambitions were directed toward a career of piracy, and in this, his fifth voyage, they seemed about to be realized.

Silvers had seen men die. He had crept on deck and looked, fascinated, at Sam, whose red face was white at last, and whose stubborn neck was bent at a horrifying angle. But Silvers had his doubts as to the final outcome of the struggle. Of all these men of blood and violence, he esteemed the prowess of the tall doctor most highly. Anyone who could have killed Sam with his bare hands, "He," said Silvers, thinking it over, "was the guy for my money!"

If the amazing doctor should fall forth and overwhelm the rest, where exactly would Augustus Condon stand? That was Silvers' problem. Pirates, he had read, invariably met their doom swinging from a yard arm over yawning black water.

Although business at the N. S. Vernon. During three days recently forty two large trucks each day arrived heavily loaded with spool squares, amounting to more than one hundred thousand feet per day, beside this on one of the three days, three carloads of stock arrived by rail from Tel grade. It would seem a good winter's work is assured.

Milliken & Tomilson

WHOLESALE GROCERY

Located at No. 11 Lincoln in Lewiston, Me., is a progressive wholesale grocery house, which has been essential in the continued development and expansion of Auburn and vicinity, one of the prominent firms of the county under experienced management. There are many establishments in this important factor in the commercial and business life of the section, and it is one of the foremost wholesale grocery houses of this part of the country. The retailers have come to know that they can get from them the very best goods on the market, hence they seek no further market. They have a reputation far and wide as business men of wide experience and strategic forward methods and it is not surprising that the volume of the business is ever increasing.

They long ago determined to see that their patrons received the better quality which the consumer demands. In these days, and therefore, it is not strange that patrons of stores who receive their goods from this wholesale grocery house seldom think of buying elsewhere.

There is a great deal more to the business of conducting a wholesale grocery than the average man understands. This is an essential business that requires at its head a man of experience in the buying world and executives who are familiar with the details and the necessity for adequate distribution. It is such houses as this one that add to the convenience and provide wholesome goods of the highest quality at the most reasonable prices.

The officers and employees of Milliken & Tomilson are clean cut, efficient and accommodating to the marked degree.

We are pleased in this edition to direct your attention to this establishment as a distinctive feature of the commercial and industrial efficiency of this country and to the management as among the leading business men and most valuable citizens of the community, who materially assist in making this county more progressive and more attractive from a commercial standpoint.

Delia M. Havey

BEAUTY SHOP

EDMOND STEAM PROCESS—PERMANENT WAVING—ALL BRANCHES OF BEAUTY CULTURE

Located on Lisbon street in Lewiston, Me., offers the ladies of this section an opportunity to receive the latest in marcelling, manuring, facial and scalp treatments and permanent waving.

This is an institution that we wish to call attention of the ladies of this section, for it is conducted solely for their benefit. This is a day and age when women, both old and young, are paying more and more attention to the little things which make them more attractive and which keep them from having a look beyond their years.

For years men have been having their faces massaged and their hair taken care of by men who make it their business to know what is the best and what should be done to preserve hair and remedy facial troubles. It is only in the last decade that the women have realized that it was necessary to have this work done for them, thought that if their hair was clean that that was all that was necessary.

In the modern beauty shop today it is possible to have the face treated in such a way that the little wrinkles and skin troubles vanish and with them, years.

They specialize in Marcelling, hair dressing, and shampooes. They use only the very best toilet preparations and make it their policy to furnish the best there is in this line and will handle only such preparations as will give the best of satisfaction. Many skin troubles can be traced directly to the use of wrong kind of lotions and preparations.

In closing we wish to state that a visit to the Delia M. Havey Beauty Shop will result in you finding out many little things that really count and which you will be able to use to your advantage in the future.

FRANK M. TAYLOR

OFFERS A WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SERVICE IN CONFECTIONERY, WRAPPING PAPER, PAPER BAGS, TWINE, CONTINENTAL MILLS PAPER PRODUCTS, AND CIGARS, CIGARETTES, PIPES AND TOBACCO

Located at No. 70 Congress in Rumford, Me., is one of the foremost wholesale paper, cigar and tobacco concerns in this part of the state and enjoys an ever increasing patronage.

Because of the great volume of business transacted through their extensive wholesale establishment, and because of the up-to-date quality of the products handled, this well known establishment has gained for this section a commercial prestige as an excellent market for retailers that could be gained in no other manner.

Thousands of dollars are brought into this section each year through the trade channels presided over by this well known house and a number of people are also given employment by this concern. The fact that their trade extends over all adjoining counties, which is their special field, brings new faces, new business and adds prosperity to the city in which they are located.

LET BABY MAKE NOISE, IT'S MUSIC

When baby splits the eardrums of the family by hammering with a spoon on a tin pan or bangs on the floor with his wooden blocks, encourage him. It's music, or at least has musical potentialities.

This latest discovery of child experts, announced in the March Woman's Home Companion, one of the expert-musicians proves, she says, that jazz music is instinctive in children and that if the noises of youngsters are directed along rhythmic channels, musical talent can be developed in nearly every one of them.

In one experiment with children of pre-school age, says Miss Clayton, the two-year-olds began making improvised noises with kettle lids and wooden blocks, while a teacher played simple airs on the piano. At three years of age, real musical instruments instead of toys, were made available to the group, but the actual study of musical scores was not attempted. Within a short time the children were singing the melodies of Brohm's Lullaby and Schubert's Slumber Song. Later, children unable to carry a tune in kindergarten, were admitted to the group and soon learned the elements of melody.

The attitude of the children toward music was expressed by a little girl who reported to her parents that "Bobbie has a drum, but it isn't a drum. It's a musical instrument."

At grade school age any child should pass from the simple rhythmic stage to the easy mastery of good music, Miss Clayton concludes.

WHO IS TO BLAME? FARMER OR MERCHANT

This is a true story that happened in a town in Iowa.

A man entered a store and made a small purchase. As the merchant was wrapping it up for him the customer pointed to a package under his arm and said:

"I wonder if you would mind wrapping this up a little better for me. It got kinda damaged in shipping."

"Not at all," said the merchant. "What have you been getting?"

"Some kind of patented salt I've been reading about in the farm magazines," replied the customer. "It was announced in an advertisement the other day that they had just got in a carload and were selling it at a special price in 10-pound lots so I sent for some to try it out. It's something new, I guess, and I've never seen any of it, but I thought I'd try it out on this special offer."

"What did it cost you?" queried the storekeeper. The customer told him.

"Huh!" snorted the storekeeper. "Special, my eye! They just hooked you, that's all. I have it right here and sell it every day at ten cents a pound less and you don't have to take it in ten-pound lots either."

"The deuce you say!" returned the customer. "Don't that beat all? I've been reading it in the farm papers quite a while and thinking I'd try some, but I didn't know where to get it until I read it in an ad the other day, and then I sat right down and sent in my order."

"Better try buying at home next time," announced the proprietor a little acidly, as he handed him the re-wrapped package. "You'd saved a dollar on this."

"Thanks for the advice," returned his customer with his hand on the door latch. "Now let me give you some. You better try advertising what you have to sell and at what price. I'd have bought some from you a long time ago if I'd known you carried it, but you just sat back and waited for me to come in and buy it."

"The advertisement told me they had it, and I bought from them. Probably a lot more of your customers did the same, and I don't see that you can blame them if they did. When a business house lets me know it has something I want I am going to buy it from them instead of going some place else to ask if they have it. If you don't care enough for your customers to inform them what you have to sell you'll continue losing business to others—Exchange.

FRANK L. FLEMING

Located at No. 57 Davis Avenue, Auburn, is the dealer in this territory for Delco-Light Electric Power and Light plants and Delco electric water systems, both products of General Motors—the Delco-Light will generate enough power for electric refrigeration in addition to lighting the farm home and outer buildings—just phone him or drop him a card and he'll bring Delco-Light to your home for a night demonstration.

There is no one who has been of greater benefit to the progress and modernization of the state than Frank L. Fleming, who offers the people a complete service.

He is the dealer for the Delco Water and Light Plants and offers the public a complete service in suburban engineering. No matter what problem you have just call at his office or write him and he will furnish you complete details with costs as to how you can make your place modern in every particular. He is always glad to give estimates and there is no problem in this line that he will not be able to solve for you.

There is nothing more important to the general health of the people than to have pure water and all the conveniences of a water system. This system will pump an ample supply for the kitchen, bathroom, to water the lawn, do the washing and do some irrigation in the garden and incidentally protect the owner against fire. It is a practical insurance on the house and adjoining buildings.

Frank L. Fleming of Auburn offers the Delco light and water plants. This is the wonderful product of some of the country's greatest engineering and inventive minds and is a compact light plant in itself, carrying as many lights as you desire and more than sufficient for the large country estate. It also provides sufficient power to operate a water system, electric iron, run the churn, cream separator, electric refrigerator or the washing machine. The Delco light plant is made in 30 different sizes and no matter how large or small a place you desire to light they can fit you out with a plant that will suit your particular needs. They sell much cheaper than formerly as they have placed this concern on a basis of quantity production which gives the people the benefit of low prices.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the fact that these products are backed by The General Motors Corp., as it is important to buy plants of this kind from some responsible organization.

In making this review we are glad to point out the advantages of this marvelous invention and to predict its practical universal use in the distant future. They are in line with modern ideas and should be seen and investigated by all the home owners of this section of the country.

SAFETY FIRST

A medical examination had disclosed the fact that Sam Johnson had a floating kidney and he was quite worried over it. Meeting the pastor of the African Baptist Church on the street he asked for help.

"Reverend," he said, "de doctor done told me Ah got a floating kidney and Ah wish you would say some prayers fo' me, please Sunday."

"How come, prayin' fo' a floating kidney?" inquired the good pastor. "All mah congregation would blast right out laughing."

"Ah don't see why," insisted Sam. "Last Sunday you prayed fo' all the loose livers."

NOT SO FAST

The train was pulling out of the platform. The old gentleman was just settling down comfortably. Suddenly door burst open, and a young man tumbled into the carriage and seated himself, panting and puffing, opposite the old gentleman.

The latter looked on with obvious disapproval.

"You must be very unfortunat young man," he said, "after a while. Why, when I was young I never panted and got out of breath like that after a run."

"Perhaps not," returned the other, regaining his breath a little. "But I missed this train at the last station."

Generally speaking law suits are the most expensive kind of suits to have, and they can't be dry cleaned.

E. N. SWETT SHOE CO.

Located at No. 180 Main in Norway, Me., is the popular firm that features the newest and most exclusive styles in shoes for men and women.

Under the able direction of a management well informed in the business and prepared to offer up-to-date styles in footwear and at the same time fit the shoes so that it actually fits the foot. The ability in this respect has won for this firm many patrons in this community.

This popular store carries a complete stock of high grade shoes which range from the most conservative models that are greeted with a nice refinement, to the most modern models in the varied lines of color which the designers seek out that exclusive style and model into shoes to satisfy the most fastidious taste.

Shoes in a wide variety of styles that play a leading role in the correct foot costume of the well dressed men and women of this community are on display at this popular store at prices to fit every purse.

Shoes for men that fit with the same unfailing style and comfort that you have always wanted can be found here.

Shoes for women are at this well known store in all the latest graceful lines for street wear and also an extraordinary assortment of the chic models are presented in many clever new versions and delectable colors, suited to the general loveliness of Milady's outfit.

This firm has left nothing undone to give to its customers the very best and latest offerings in shoes at reasonable prices for every occasion.

By an occasional look at this store's display window you can predict what style in shoes will be. Shoes of fitted comfort that are your armchair's greatest rival. Shoes that have been walk-tested, run-tested and dance-tested can be found at this popular store.

"Don't you and your husband patch up your quarrels?" asked a friend.

"Mercy, no," replied Mrs. Moneybags. "We can always afford to have new ones."

The divorce rate is highest in the southwestern states, including Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas, a statistician asserts.

Mrs. John Freeman Dressmaker

Located at No. 132 Lisbon in Lewiston, Me., offers an excellent service in designing, dressmaking and altering. She is the creator of many beautiful gowns which give the wearer a garment of individuality. Many ladies from over the surrounding territory have found they can dress better and cheaper by an occasional visit to her establishment.

The work of this designer has attained a reputation that extends for many miles and she in her sphere has become as famous as the "Dressmaker of Paris."

She is an excellent designer and creator of dresses and gowns. She keeps thoroughly abreast of the times upon the styles and materials that are being used in the fashion centers of the country and can tell you what will be worn the coming season. From these selection she is able to advise each customer what color, materials, trimmings and style of dress will be in harmony with the remainder of her wardrobe and be adapted to her own type of beauty. This makes the service far more attractive than ready-made as she gives to each an air of distinction and one that suits each personality.

Ladies have found that to leave their problem of dress entirely to her has saved them much time and trouble as well as money and then they have a wardrobe all their own.

Another important department is the remodeling, as here materials and dresses can be often changed a little and made to fit changes in figures or style.

In this review we are pleased to compliment Mrs. Freeman upon the position she occupies in the life of the ladies of this section of the state and to recommend her services to all of our readers.

BREAKFAST MAKES OR BREAKS THE DAY

Breakfast can make or break the day. The first glimpse of a colorful table is like a cheery "Good Morning." Warm sunshine glimmering over the spools silver makes the fresh flowers seem even more colorful. An aroma of coffee is in the air.

As breakfast is such a simple meal utmost care should be taken to make it all the more attractive. Daylight is not as charitable as candlelight and every little detail is important. The gay colored linen should be fresh and newly pressed; the silver, china and glass spotlessly polished. Always serve fruit, ice cold and soft, tea and chocolate piping hot. The exact timing of eggs is necessary and the toast should be crisp, golden brown squares.

NEXT GENERATION

The little children romping around will become the men and women of another generation. They will control the destiny of this community then, as we control it now.

Community betterment is always the goal of every good citizen. It is the great lubricant which causes the wheels of enlightenment to spin noiselessly and to a purpose.

To insure a better community for the future we must begin with the children of today.

If in their childhood they are taught to differentiate between wisdom and foolishness, between the good and the bad, between right and wrong, the lessons they learn will bear golden fruit in after years, and the community we love so well will be brighter and better because of the influences they will exert upon the citizenry of their day.

Remember the little children of today, for tomorrow they will have children of their own, and the law of heredity is strong with us all.

Little sun shines brightly when we beat the clouds away, but the little cloud has not yet learned to push.

The only way to make dreams come true is to wake up.

LOBSTER'S LEGAL STATUS

To have legal status in Maine the lobster taken from its coast waters must measure approximately ten and a half inches from the tip of its nose to the end of its middle tail tipper. Such a measure up to 13 inches are common, and these weigh about two and three-quarters pounds. In winter the lobstermen are paid anywhere from 40 to 50 cents a pound for their catches.

THAT'S DIFFERENT

The recruit had been at the naval training station two weeks and had spent most of that time digging ditches, chopping trees and filling depression. Finally he sought his immediate superior.

"You see, sir," he complained "when I joined the navy they said I'd see the world, and for two weeks I've been doing nothing but rearrange it."

Don't knock your town.

An aviator must know his business from the ground up.

Too frequently the friend in need is the last one to be paid.

RAYMOND H. EASTMAN

Located in the Masonic Block in Norway, Me., extends credit without extra charge to its many patrons.

This store is one of the leading centers in furniture business in this section, carrying an extensive stock and offer the public a service that has no superiors.

Under the direction of men who have a wide acquaintance from people throughout the community—known as the makers of happy homes—have been serving the people over this territory for many miles around.

One of the important features of the business life of any community is the outfitting of the home. In this respect, let us direct your attention to this popular store.

When they started in business they decided that the best would be none too good for their customers, and they have conducted their large establishment on this policy ever since. They are prepared to furnish your home complete, and their stock includes the moderate or the more expensive designs, whichever you desire. They can furnish you a setting of any period and their ability to fit you in the furniture line is only limited by the various styles turned out by the American manufacturers today. If you are contemplating the furnishing of a room complete or if it is only one or two pieces that you want you will be able to find the right thing here.

When you call at this popular store you will find the proprietor and assistants courteous and accommodating and you will know that the prices denote real and true value for this store has established a reputation throughout this section for fair dealings to all.

They can furnish you with anything you desire in the furniture line and the management of this store has made a study of the furniture during all the periods of history, being thoroughly familiar with the settings; also can furnish the little necessities to correspond with the style in which you desire to furnish the room or house.

We wish to compliment this popular company upon their activities in the business life of the community and their progressive store.

L. E. FLANDERS & CO.

CLOTHES FOR MEN

Located at No. 62 Court in Auburn, Me., is one of the leading men's clothing and furnishing establishments in this community.

They sell high class merchandise at prices that denote real, true value, are among the wide awake business men of the community, they cater to every taste and have a most comprehensive stock.

It is with a feeling of satisfaction that the customers enter this establishment.

Realizing that the service extended next year will be considered when the next season approaches, this well known house has chosen its stock with a view to giving its customers the greatest value possible. When it comes to ready made clothing they have lines which are so complete as to styles, materials and prices that the most particular can find something suitable. But the success of a dealer in this line rests not only with the price which he pays for his goods. He must be an efficient buyer.

er, well versed in the styles of the day and with a knowledge of the demands of the trade that has made this store so popular with the young men of this section.

In the way of collars, ties, hosiery, underwear and in fact everything in the way of gent's furnishings you will find the stock large, selected by buyers of excellent taste and priced reasonably.

This firm's store is stocked with the greatest variety of quality men's clothing in the country. Popular prices prevail, automatically going lower as materials, manufacturing and retailing prices will permit, this protects the buyer. The many patrons come from all quarters of the county and outside as well.

The L. E. Flanders & Co. establishment is a very prominent and well known business firm, a progressive booster for the community, we are pleased to compliment it upon the metropolitan service and public spirited policies.

RUMFORD AUTO MACHINE CO.

Located on Smithville street in Rumford, Me., features high grade machine work and specializes in regrinding of cylinders for their many friends.

It is a well known fact there is no institution in the community that has met in greater favor with the public than this well known establishment. By reason of the fact that the management has been wide experience in every feature of this business and because of their comprehensive knowledge of every branch of the trade, this establishment has continued to witness the increase in the number of its patrons.

By close microscopic examination it has been found that grinding of cylinders is far better than reaming. What is cylinder grinding? It is a highly scientific method of making a cylinder round, grinding cylinders has a desirable effect on the power in that it restores the motor to its normal condition of running. The job done by the Rumford Auto Machine Co. is a standard motor has been found in the Rumford Auto Machine Co. cylinders are better than any other, not just of this section but of the whole country.

commercial car manufacturers of this country and Europe use the process.

To prevent loss of power, to have gasoline economy and a quiet humming motor is the aim and desire of every owner of a car. The engine is the heart of the automobile, and when it gets out of trim it requires the work of a specialist. Many garages and shops are equipped mechanically and do not employ men except for adjustment of cars. This firm has able automotive engineers with cars and eyes trained to detect all knocks and causes of trouble.

Motor engineers are employed here who understand all types of motors from the simple one-cylinder stationary engine to the four-cylinder, six-cylinder, and twelve, and no matter what kind of motor you have you will find that when it goes out of this shop it will be sparkling on all cylinders.

In making this review of the Rumford Auto Machine Co. we are glad to compliment this establishment upon the position they occupy in the business life of the county and to offer their service to all our readers.

Mabel J. Stevens

BEAUTY SHOP

Located at No. 285 Court in Auburn, Me., under professional direction specializing in marcelling, shampooing, facials, permanent waving and all beauty culture, uses the best preparations, one of the leading beauty shops in this community.

They specialize in the most advanced systems of beauty culture and merit the large custom with which it is favored by a discriminating public.

In a shop of this nature, the demands of each customer varies to an almost unbelievable extent and because this shop caters to wants and needs of its customers is the cause of its ever increasing popularity. In addition to these characteristics it is reliable, and their advice, the outgrowth of study and experience, can be relied upon like the treatments given here.

Marcelling, manicuring, facial massages, including electrical facials, dressing, and individual permanent waving, are some of the specialties at this shop, and to the woman who wishes the advanced methods of beauty culture her desire can be attained at this establishment. Here the style of a coiffure is considered too important a part of your appearance to be governed by some whim of the moment, and because of this the individual type is considered and their work emphasizes youth in the younger woman and dignity and good grooming in the mature. Healthy hair is a necessary quality for a well appearing coiffure, and at this shop unhealthy hair is treated after the quait but successful methods of long ago days, the whole system being based on the correct use of tonics that stimulate and heal.

It is openly admitted by skin specialists everywhere that activity of the body lends brightness to the face and makes one appear young, still there are unmistakable signs of age that appear even with a healthy, active body, and at this shop, the give-away lines and flabby muscles are remedied. At this shop the treatment chosen in facial work is the one which is the best suited to the case in hand.

Women cannot be too careful of their personal appearance and the most uncomely woman could be attractive if she would only try. At Mabel J. Stevens Beauty Shop the treatments and advice given is to make the most of your good points and the least of your bad ones.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

Located at No. 157 Main in Lewiston, Me., is a financial pillar of unsurpassed strength in this section of the state.

As a factor in the building of this section has played a prominent and honorable part. It is known as a bank of superlative integrity and one that can be counted on always to carry its share of the load in any forward looking and progressive movement. Its influence on the home life of the community has been marked indeed, for through its willing assistance and able advice many who would otherwise never have known the satisfaction of owning their homes are now substantial citizens and home owners and are aiding in the progress of their various communities.

The policy of this well-known institution is of accommodation and convenience to customers. Liberal without being careless, conservative without being hide-bound.

The best interests of its customers are always consulted and they determine the course it shall follow in every instance, except where those interests would conflict with or prove a menace to the welfare of the community at large. The policy has drawn to this institution a large clientele, every one of whom is a real friend to all whom it serves.

This bank of course conducts a general banking business. Its service and advice are sought by the largest corporations as well as by the humblest individual, and in every instance the same courteous treatment is extended and the same careful attention given to the problems presented. Open checking accounts are carried as a part of the bank's regular business, certificates of deposits are issued as well as drafts on domestic and all foreign points. Collections are promptly made and every assistance in the way of loans to deserving enterprises is rendered.

A noteworthy feature of this bank is its safety deposit department, those desiring that security may secure the use of a strong box at a very reasonable rental.

It is under the control of and subject to inspection and regulation by the United States government. Its soundness has never been questioned. Its officers are men of highest standing in their community and of irreproachable character and unassailable reputation. They have always adhered to the soundest principles of banking and are well deserving of the magnificent patronage that has been extended to their ably managed institution. The First National Bank is one of the most valuable of the community's many valuable assets.

HEARING INSECTS FEED
"You wrote recently in this column," writes a correspondent to "Looker-on" in the London Daily Chronicle, "that one of your readers heard bugs eating. I have never heard them, but I have heard snails and caterpillars eat snails make a scratching noise. Caterpillars crunch. The caterpillars of the private hawk moth make quite a loud noise, and I have often heard them when asleep in the garden, and they have been eating the leaves." Other correspondents state that they have heard snails feeding.

POSES AS CLERK, GETS $97,300.00
New York City—Sophisticated New York brokers are out $97,300 in valuable stocks because their messenger boy failed to recognize a clever crook who, for about 15 minutes posed as another broker's clerk. The messenger boy was delivering in the usual manner, stocks from one office to another.

Mr. Shrinap: "Dreiser, dreiser, dreiser. Haven't you any other thoughts?"
Mrs. Shrinap: "Yes. I also need two hats, a coat and some shoes."

OFFER A COMPLETE LINE OF BUILDING MATERIALS, DOORS, WINDOWS, FLOORING, ETC.

Located at No. 54 Washington in Auburn, Me., is one of the firms of this section that has built a reputation far and wide for the highest grade of quality building material.

It is a well known fact that there is no one institution in the community that has met with greater favor with the public than this well known establishment. By reason of the fact that the management has had wide experience in every feature of this business and because of their comprehensive knowledge of every branch of the trade, this establishment caters to customers' requirements in the number of its patrons.

The company is known throughout this section as a leader in the building material business. The treatment and prestige of their customers, the experience of years as the prominent firm in this line, the practical knowledge that has won for them the recognition of the community at large and the patronage of thousands, all adds to the progress and prosperity of the community in which their large and modern establishment is located.

This section is indeed fortunate to have such a progressive firm to serve it in all kinds of building materials and adds in no little way to the progress and prosperity of the community.

If you want anything in this line, telephone them, call at their establishment, or write them, and when you have decided what you need you can depend on it that this well known firm will see that you get it. With the business acumen and foresight which has won such wide popularity and patronage for the firm in the past, the management has anticipated the needs and demands of the people of this section and of the state and this establishment is one of the best equipped in this community and though the business is growing to large proportions and the demand is for a corresponding even their large reputation, this firm will continue to render individual service to every patron. Customers and employees are thoroughly conversant with every feature of the business, and as a result work moves along in a most rapid and satisfactory manner.

GRANT'S CANDY SHOP

Located at No. 110 Leban in Lewiston, Me., is a popular establishment of the city where first class service is rendered the public.

The excellent and courteous treatment their efficient clerks are giving the people is standing for them a large patronage of which they may well be proud. The place is equipped with the latest and best fixtures and perfectly adapted to the weather is cool and comfortable, and the atmosphere is clean and bright, and the service is prompt and efficient.

Twelve months out of the year this well known establishment is one of the popular social centers of the community where the best of ice cream, candy, confectionary service, is to be had. Their soda fountain service is not surpassed in the most metropolitan centers.

As long as many patrons also buy cream for serving in the home. They carry a most complete line of the best candy and offer a service that is both complete and satisfactory.

There is a grill in one of the social centers of the country. All of the latest soda fountain delicacies and candies make their first appearance here and it is no exaggeration to say that this popular establishment has surpassed many in the much larger cities both in service and popularity.

When the people who handle important articles of food and the place in which they are handled are as described above, it is safe to wager that what they have to offer their customers is the best that money can buy.

Having gained a reputation for its good business methods, satisfactory service and the best of wholesome products, the proprietors find all goods in great demand and as a consequence the business is growing rapidly.

OPPORTUNITY IS EVER WITH ENERGETIC MEN

There is an old adage which says that a "rolling stone gathers no moss." It is as true today as it ever was. Regardless of locality, opportunity is ever with the intelligent and the energetic, and moving about seldom results in any good.

Abraham Lincoln was thinking of this undisputed fact of life when he said: "If you intend to work there's no better place than right where you are; if you do not intend to go to work, you can not get along any where. Squirming and crawling from place to place will do no good."

The man who is caught in the popular rush to some fancied favored spot is almost invariably unsuccessful. There are no states and no localities that are endowed with all of the desirable things of life. All have some advantage in which the inhabitants can take just pride. And they likewise have disadvantages.

This is not to counsel against changing locality or occupation if the opportunity for improvement comes, but to be swayed by every story of fabulous sums to be made in some other place is a mistake that has led countless people to failure.

The acre of diamonds is at home and there are no greener pastures than your own.

Loyalty to home, loyalty to the job you are doing and eternal perseverance are fixed rules for success.

No region has a monopoly of all natural and artificial material and spiritual blessings. They average up about the same no matter where you go.

You may find, now and then, a visitor from a neighboring or a distant locality who will feel sorry for you, but just remember that "if you intend to work there's no better place than right where you are."

GOING HIGHER AND HIGHER IN BUILDING SKYSCRAPERS

Since all humans aspire to the high places there is nothing unnatural in the construction of skyscrapers. Man was not content until he invaded the birds' element with the assistance of the airplane; having achieved that goal it was not strange that he began constructing lofty buildings in which to work and even to make his home. This is the idealistic view of the skyscraper. On the economic side the skyscraper's existence is justified by the fact that soaring land values in metropolitan centers and even in the smaller American cities make it imperative that small tracts of land render greater service.

One wonders what the limit of the skyscraper will be. A few years ago the Woolworth building in New York City, climbing 722 feet high, was the last word. Today there are several buildings in that city and New York which are higher. In one building in Chicago, 10,000 people work each day, though the plot of land which it occupies is only two blocks square.

Structural steel makes it possible to build these architectural giants. The limit of safety has apparently not been reached. How much higher they can go in safety with existing building material is an open question. The skyscraper of the future are dependent entirely on that question. In the meantime it is gratifying to note that the newer skyscrapers are adding beauty to the world, a new form of beauty which will go down in history as an American contribution. Ugly skyscrapers are abundant and more of them will be built, but structures like the Tribune tower in Chicago and the New York Telephone building in New York City offer aesthetic compensation.

CALIGULA GALLEYS
The galleys of Caligula which were restored are specimens of naval antiquity nearly one thousand nine hundred years old. Aside from the value of the galleys themselves there were objects of art and other valuable material in them. During the process of bringing these to the surface and lowering the level of the lake, an opportunity was afforded for exploring the submerged banks, which was of great archaeological interest because of the magnificent Roman villas that formerly lived there.

Mrs. Newirth: "Have you any antiquities of the Louis XV period?"
Dealer: "Yes, madam, we have quite an assortment."
Mrs. Newirth: "I would like to see a Louis XV vacuum cleaner."

Davis Cadillac Co.

Located at No. 200 Main in Lewiston, Me., is one of the firms to which we particularly desire to call attention, for the management of this establishment has instituted service and carried out a policy of rendering such courteous service one leaves their office with a firm determination to return soon to this popular home of the famous Cadillac and LaSalle motor cars.

The 90 Degree Cadillac, which is now on display in their show rooms carries with it, of course, all of the positive assurance of sound, enduring value which has always been associated with the very name Cadillac.

Needless to say, there is all of the old reliability, responsibility and regularity of performance—more pronounced than ever because in the Cadillac plant the passage of time is a continuous process of improvement.

The new LaSalle is a delight to the eye not merely at the first admiring glance, but in the wealth of attractive details which a closer inspection reveals.

Incidentally, LaSalle coach work has improved upon itself so that the new car comes to you not only with a greater charm of general design but a far more impressive and beautiful finish. These latter are the lesser satisfaction—the real delight will come in the revelation of greater riding ease and roadability, and swifter acceleration. A delightful experience is in store for LaSalle owners and non-owners alike.

The greatest safety is provided in driving by its long developed and improved Cadillac and LaSalle four-wheel brakes.

This is one of the foremost automobile concerns in this part of the state which has taken its place as one of the essential factors in the commercial organizations of this community.

The experienced and well known proprietors and assistants in this establishment are business men of high standing and prominent in the commercial life of the community, and in this edition it is eminently fitting and proper that we direct attention to the Davis Cadillac Co., as one of the most important features of the efficiency of this section.

The write-ups appearing in this edition have been prepared by competent newspaper men who endeavor to establish closer trade relations between the merchant and consumer. Highly commendable are the ethics used by the various firms in their approach for business.

INVENTIONS AS A LUXURY THEN A SA NECESSITY

Perhaps it may only be a coincidence that there is one telephone and one automobile for every six people in the United States, and it may be a coincidence that the history of the motor car paralleled that of the telephone in that the former also began its career as an invention.

As the case with most inventions, at first they were a luxury, and then developed into necessity. This is the case presented by these great inventions, the telephone and the automobile—at first a luxury and now a necessity.

In 1879 there were 252 names in the telephone directory in New York City. The telephone was then in its infancy. Today the Bell Telephone system alone has 15,906,550 telephones in use in the United States. Just another case where yesterday's luxury is today's necessity.

Fifty years ago the telephone was even more of a curiosity than a luxury. The wealthy installed it in their homes for much the same reason that they collected curios and antiques. The instrument was not dependable and the system was too small to be of much value. It is difficult to see how society could get along without the telephone today, although the world got along very well without it only a half century ago. The explanation lies in the fact that the telephone constitutes a vital and complex system in a complex society.

TO AVOID HUNGER'S PANGS

There comes a time in the life of every boy and girl when the necessity of self-preservation dawns upon the consciousness, and steps must be taken to keep the stomach filled, the back warm, and the personality sheltered. To make possible the continuation of nature's biological processes, mankind has set up a general system of labor; thus, people are expected to engage in some sort of activity, receive wages, and from these wages buy what is needed to keep body and soul together.

The world today offers to intelligent people plenty of the world's goods with which to buy food, raiment, and shelter for all—and, for some, added luxuries, varying with size of income. It is true that our economic system is not yet perfect—yet in the United States we enjoy conditions far superior to those in any other country in the world. For this, alone, we should be thankful; perhaps, at times, we may become hungry—we may get very, very hungry—but we in America must admit that the only thing any where, at any time in the world's history, which offers a decent and honest victory over hunger is OPPORTUNITY—and who denies that the United States refuses to any honest, intelligent, hard-working individual the golden opportunities of OPPORTUNITY?

So, pondering the wealth of Opportunity that beckons and awaits our boys and girls in this land, we are forced to scorn the foolish and un-sound offerings of the Communist and the Socialist, who, we are informed, depend upon force to attain their despotic ends.

As long as human life exists upon this planet earth, there will be need for things to sustain it; there will be need for food, raiment, and shelter, plus comfort and luxury. The ONLY means of distributing the physical resources of this earth equally, or nearly so, among people is to endow them, as nearly equal as possible, with high moral and mental intelligence.

Knowing this, it is the task of the adult population today to educate the youth so that the latter may evaluate the world's wealth in terms of mentality and morality; these qualities alone have carried civilization thus far, and are its only guarantees of future safety.

PARENT'S LA ROCHELLE, PARENT & CO.

Located at No. 102 Congress in Rumford, Me., invite the ladies to make selection for their gentlemen friends.

Never before has greater care been exerted by the well dressed man choosing his personal appointments. His haberdashery is a distinguishing mark and he is beginning to realize it. An inharmonious treatment of his accessories bring a frown of disfavor upon the faces of those who choose with care and thought.

Men and young men are now patronizing this shop because of the helpful little hints and suggestion they cordially extend to all their customers. This establishment has arranged a most attractive display of hats, shirts, ties, collars and other apparel necessities. A large stock affords a wide selection from which to choose. No matter what may be your requirements as regards to type, quality or price you will be sure to have them satisfied at this well stocked haberdashery. So the well dressed men, regardless of their financial resources find just what they want when they patronize this establishment.

When you enter this store you are greeted with a smile and the salesmen are ready to be of the slightest service to you. They will make suggestions about what you should wear and if certain articles do not become you they will not hesitate to tell you but will show you another that is more complimentary to your type.

The accessories which this store handles gives to the wearer the air of distinction that belongs to the well dressed man, but which seems to be so hard to secure.

Another factor of this establishment is the courtesy they extend women buyers in helping them to select gifts for their husbands and friends. From their large stock women shoppers are sure to find something that will please them and from the helpful suggestion of the salesmen be sure to satisfy the recipient. This service is especially appreciated when shopping for the men folks.

This concern has built up a prosperous business and the unusually large trade they enjoy is the result of fair treatment accorded the public. Their policy is always to serve the public with goods of the highest quality at reasonable prices.

GENESIS OF THE DRAMA

About 600 B. C. the poet Arion, at Corinth, led his cyclic chorus of 50. A half century later came Thespis of Attica, whose Thespian innovation was the introduction of an actor to fill the intervals of singing with stories and mimicry and short dialogues with the leader of the chorus. The adventures of Dionysus were recited by the leader of the chorus and had been answered by the chorus, and thus made an important step toward the drama.

GOES INTO THE HIGHWAYS

The pastor of a scattered parish near Steyning, England, has discovered the way to obtain a good attendance at his church. Each Sunday before the service the preacher takes his car to regular calling places some distance from the church. Whether the day is stormy or fair, he never fails to gather enough people to fill his church. Every one who attends gets a free ride after the service to the point where he was picked up.

CLARKE FOUNDRY CO.

FEATURE GRAY IRON, BRASS, BRONZE AND ALUMINUM CASTINGS

that are uniform in strength, and at the same time, soft enough to machine economically. We are very fortunate in having such a plant in our midst that can be depended upon to produce this class of goods.

It is not surprising then that this concern should have such a successful career in business or that it should now be one of the leading foundry establishments in this section of the country.

They do a general foundry business and the superiority of their foundry work is well known throughout this section, especially among manufacturers.

They employ a number of people in their plant, many of whom are most highly skilled workmen and thus the trade has the advantage of the work of men who have spent the better part of their lives at the trade. This concern has proven to be one of the most valued additions to the industrial organization of the community and has become one of our leading and most substantial enterprises.

ALSO FEATURE BATTERIES—RECHARGING—RENTALS

Located at No. 102 Turner in Auburn, Me., is a well equipped and efficient tire repair establishment, also an extensive dealer in high grade tires at reasonable prices. Make a special feature of vulcanizing and repairing under direction of tire and vulcanizing men of wide experience, who are always boosters for this vicinity.

Just as the motor car and motor truck have become indispensable features of latter day business and social life so has the well equipped vulcanizing establishment become one of the essential features of every progressive American community. This well known establishment has come into prominence in this section of the state because it is only equipped in the most scientific manner for the highest grade of work; but it is operated under the direction of men who are experts in the vulcanizing and tire business.

They are most extensive dealers in tires. In this department they evidence their wisdom by featuring high grade ties for which they are the official distributors in this section. Featuring Kelly-Springfield tires and tubes which speak for themselves. This brand needs no comments from us. Just let us advise that they have all sizes always on hand.

This establishment specializes in re-vulcanizing tires. This means that when you bring a tire that you think is worn out they will take it and rebuild it so that you will get more mileage out of it, and the popular part of this service is that your rebuilt tire is secured at much less cost than a new one. This service has been so efficient, satisfactory and economical that many patrons just send their tires in by parcel post and have them rebuilt.

Whatever you may wish in tires it is well worth your while to consult them. Their service is both courteous and painstaking and you are made to feel that your patronage is appreciated and desired. In charge is a substantial and progressive business man, and it is quite proper that we refer all of our readers to them.

Stormy scenes at face-washing, hair-brushing and manouevring hours for children are gradually disappearing and much hated tasks are becoming a pleasure now, says Helen Rawson Cades, beauty expert, in Woman's Home Companion.

Modern mothers instead of letting their own appearance run down, keep up with their toilet activities and the children, always imitative, are eager to learn the methods of grown-up grooming. Brightly colored toilet articles, such as brushes, combs and manouevring sets, and pleasant smelling toilet preparations enable the children to have actual fun in performing their little duties, adds Miss Cades. She also observes that instilling the desire to be a properly groomed child does not tend to make it vain, but conscious of being in good taste. Mothers cannot afford to act as examples of carelessness, either with themselves or in developing children's habits.

"Many a girl has her mother to blame for a mouth that even a lipstick can't love, and many a man wears a moustache because his mother couldn't bear to make him take his finger out of his mouth," the writer concludes.

Stormy scenes at face-washing, hair-brushing and manouevring hours for children are gradually disappearing and much hated tasks are becoming a pleasure now, says Helen Rawson Cades, beauty expert, in Woman's Home Companion.

Modern mothers instead of letting their own appearance run down, keep up with their toilet activities and the children, always imitative, are eager to learn the methods of grown-up grooming. Brightly colored toilet articles, such as brushes, combs and manouevring sets, and pleasant smelling toilet preparations enable the children to have actual fun in performing their little duties, adds Miss Cades. She also observes that instilling the desire to be a properly groomed child does not tend to make it vain, but conscious of being in good taste. Mothers cannot afford to act as examples of carelessness, either with themselves or in developing children's habits.

"Many a girl has her mother to blame for a mouth that even a lipstick can't love, and many a man wears a moustache because his mother couldn't bear to make him take his finger out of his mouth," the writer concludes.

EGYPT GRAVES REVEAL RICHES

Carlo, Egypt—Thirty coffins have been discovered here by University of Pennsylvania excavators at Mejdum, believed to have been interred 3,000 years ago. Many rare jewels are found, sacrifices and toll charges for the assurance of uninterrupted progress of their owners' immortal souls.

The stately old aristocrat was approached somewhat cockily by a rich and vulgar young man who announced: "I say sir, I am thinking of marrying one of your girls. Have I your permission?"

"Yes, indeed," was the reply. "Which one interests you, the maid or the cook?"

RUMFORD DRUG STORE

Located at Congress in Rumford, Me., is a modern pharmacy carrying pure and wholesome drugs and medicines in most complete stock. Just drop in or call them on the phone and you will get the most painstaking and accommodating service that has won them this enviable reputation, a metropolitan and progressive establishment under able and progressive management.

Known throughout this section as one of the reliable and progressive stores of this section is this well known drug store. It has gained a large trade by its good quality and commendable methods. Is headquarters for famous world remedies, which are compounded from prescriptions of renowned physicians. It always keeps the stock in the best condition and a full line so you can get what you call for. It is very careful in the filling of prescriptions and having had much experience, the pharmacists in this drug store are considered the best in their line. This popular pharmacy also handles a complete line of druggist's sundries, perfumes, toilet articles, combs, brushes and all of the goods that are known to a first class store of this kind.

Cigars, soda and stationery as well as the long line of druggist's sundries here, furnishing the public with the most accommodating service. The proprietor is one of those genial and whole souled personalities who dispenses good cheer on all occasions.

The institution is one that is known far and wide not only as the pharmacy where all pure drugs and chemicals are kept, but giving the best of service, and has attained a wide reputation among the physicians for the efficiency and care exercised in compounding of prescriptions.

During the course of their career they have witnessed marvelous advances in science and being students of the times, are thoroughly familiar with every development.

They were in business when a druggist had to compound all medicines and have a wide and practical knowledge. We desire to compliment them upon their eminently successful career in the business and professional world.

OUR LEGAL NIAGARA PASSED

During last year, according to the Berkeley, California, Gazette, the State legislatures of 43 of our states passed 16,921 new laws, an average of 46 for every day of the year. The total of measures proposed was well over 50,000.

We are the most "legalized" nation in the world, and apparently our elected officials never tire of forcing "virtue" on us by passing additional laws at every opportunity.

Law-making is an estimable profession, when the laws are necessary and will stand intelligent scrutiny. But one wonders how many of these 16,921 new laws really come under such a classification. How many of them abolish, or restrict to some extent, some of those personal rights, in business or social life, which the founders of this country held inviolate? How many of them, instead of correcting some evil, merely create more bureaucrats to be paid by the public?

America's legal Niagara is the wonder of the world. However, it's an ill wind that blows no one good, and our law-making proclivities at least give employment to the politicians who create and pass them, and add a few thousand more employees each year to the government payroll to be supported by the taxpayers.

REASON FOR SCHOOL COSTS

The cost of maintaining pupils in the public schools has apparently arisen beyond most scales of advanced costs in other lines of endeavor. Back in 1913 the cost of schools divided by the number of pupils actually attending, showed that $38.31 annually should be charged up against each of them. In 1916, the figure had grown to $49.12, in 1920 to $64.16, in 1925 to $98.45, while the latest figure available shows an expenditure of $102.95.

The expenditures for public schools have almost doubled since 1920. Annual expenditures for increased buildings, and contents has increased rapidly from 1920. Consolidated schools have made rapid progress during the last nine years, and all of these things have figured prominently in the rising cost of education.

One should not be alarmed over the costs, as wages too have increased since 1916, and the schools have kept pace with the increase in population.

A. L. PIPER

Specializes in Fine Custom Tailoring for Men and Women

Located at No. 16 Court in Auburn, Me., operates a shop where men know good clothes are made. Only the highest grade of material used. Observant men know the value of good appearances. He is showing patterns strictly all wool materials, first class trimmings, Suits and overcoats, the fit strictly guaranteed. This shop solves the problem of good clothes.

Whenever you see a group of men there are always a few who seem to stand out from others. They are the men on whom your eyes unconsciously rest as you survey the group.

They are the men you look at not once but two or three times. Did you ever stop to analyze why these men are able to hold attraction? It is not only because they wear custom tailored clothes, but it is because men who are careful of their appearance almost invariably do wear custom tailored clothes. These men are usually leaders in their particular lines of endeavor. They do not wear custom tailored clothes simply for the name of wearing tailor made suits for clothes; they have far too much sense for that. They wear custom made clothes because they know the almost inestimable value of good appearance in business or professional life.

Men of this community patronize this popular tailoring shop for another reason. Few men are capable of judging what they can best wear. Men of this community know that this tailor can be trusted to tell them what they can wear best and they know, too, that they will never leave this shop with a suit which is unbecoming to them if they follow his advice.

Courteous service is another characteristic which makes this shop popular with the men of this community. They know that there will be no long waits for fitting. They know too that his word is good, that every suit will be just what it is said to be.

This publication takes pleasure in commending A. L. Piper to all of the men in this section of the country. They are indeed fortunate in having a place where they know that good clothes can always be obtained at a figure within reach of all. It is no wonder that men from other cities are glad to take advantage of such service.

NOTED IRISH PATRIOT

James Napier Tandy was an Irish agitator, who lived from 1740 to 1803. In 1798 he went to Paris and was put in command of a vessel for the invasion of Ireland. He remained on Irish soil, however, for only eight hours and then went to Norway and to Hamburg. At the latter place he was seized and delivered to the English and upon his return to Ireland condemned to death. Bonaparte, however, brought pressure to bear in his favor and he was released. He then went to France where he lived until his death. He was the hero of the famous ballad "The Wearing of the Green."

POLYGLOT EDITIONS

Polyglot books are those containing the subject matter in several languages, usually arranged in parallel columns. The most complete of the polyglot Bibles is the London Walton edition in the seventeenth century. Hebrew, Samaritan, Aramaic, Syriac, Arabic, Ethiopic, Persian, Greek and Latin being used.

"I'm going to have a divorce—my husband huffed thousands of insulting words at me." "You exaggerate—thousands in two weeks." "Yes, it was a dictionary."

EMPIRE FURNITURE CO.

Located at No. 242 Lisbon in Lewiston, Me., carry one of the largest lines of quality furniture to be found in this section of the country and here is represented all that is good in furniture craftsmanship since the Renaissance.

They have a large store and are able to purchase quality furniture direct and thus buying in large quantities able to have a large stock from which to make selections. The large business assures you of getting the very latest as they turn the stock very often.

They are able to offer you complete service in the way of mapping out your furnishings to harmonize and can give you home the cast of any period you desire. The furniture is all well built.

No matter whether it is a single piece you want, a room furnished or the whole house, you will find the service at this store intelligent, cooperative, but at the same time not obtrusive.

It is hardly possible for us to give a concrete idea of the excellent stock that this firm carries for the accommodation of the public, or the high quality offered at reasonable prices.

A visit to the store, however, will readily prove to you that it is the proper and most advantageous place to buy. This establishment and the men who direct its affairs are contributing in no little measure to the progress and development of this section of the state, and especially to that portion within a radius of several miles around. This community is more progressive and more attractive by reason of their activities and in this review of their onward progress, we wish not only to compliment them but to urge all our readers that they can do no better than to visit the store when in need of anything in their line.

Their business policy is exemplary of the old maxim, that "Nothing Succeeds Like Success."

Taken all in all the Empire Furniture Co., Inc., is just about one of the most important institutions of this section, and serves the people in a most efficient manner.

LUMBER—BUILDERS' HARDWARE—MAKE A SPECIALTY OF MILL WORK

Located at No. 41 Union in Berlin, Me., are extensive dealers in lumber and building materials which are offered at trade in years of service. There are few, if any, cities the size of Berlin that have advantages of this location in their midst of such an establishment as this well known firm maintains.

Their special mill work is unsurpassed in any city. By reason of their modern facilities they are able to execute all classes of work and to furnish excellent service with promptness and dispatch. By reason of their buying power this concern enters the large est markets and secures large quantities at prices so low that they offer their customers astonishing values in lumber and building supplies of every description.

The power of such large buyers cannot be too emphatically stated. It gives them a prestige and advantage which accrues to the benefit of their customers.

The stock is offered the public at very reasonable prices, and is made up into all the standard and special supplies that are demanded by the trade. Suffice to say, that they have everything in the lumber business and building material line, and that their work is of a class unsurpassed by none in the county.

Throughout this country it has come to be known as headquarters for all of these many things and by fair and honest dealings with the contractors and public, this company has not only increased its patronage but has held its old customers for many years.

The manager is one of the most prominent men in this line, and deserves the success achieved and commendation that is being given the company by the public. We wish to recommend this firm to all of our readers, and to suggest that when in need of anything in their line to give them a trial.

Atherton Furniture Co.

Located at No. 220 Lisbon in Lewiston, Me., strictly adheres to the highest business ethics which have gained a reputation for this firm that has come to be synonym for quality, value and service. Its "Friendly Service" of supplying high grade merchandise for the home is enjoyed by a discriminating public.

For the information of the readers, "Friendly Service" is the watchword of the whole institution in all its business dealings with the public. This reliable furniture firm has built this kind of service up to the present height of serving sincerely, conscientiously and helpfully at all times. It is fair, courteous and just in all its dealings and esteems the confidence of the customers as its most precious asset.

This friendly store is prepared to serve the most exacting customer. Hundreds of designs in living room suites that are luxurious, built to last and at fair and reasonable prices can be found here. There are living room suites in a large selection whose last minute designs show the creative ability of a master workman's art. Bed room suites that are exclusive and beautiful are to be found here which will please the eye and at the same time please the purse. Pieces of furniture that glow with colors and others warmly subdued are grouped about on the floor, and offered at prices which are right, for it has always been the policy of this store to sell at a fair margin of profit and never an exorbitant one.

The management extends a cheerful welcome to the public to inspect the stock at any time. The store's complete force is at your command to advise in any capacity in reference to the correct and proper treatment of your home. It is considered a favor to have you call and see the many pieces of merchandise which is open to inspection on a quality for quality inspection. The next time you are in town drop into the store to see and learn the many interesting things in reference to the scope it covers in handling the complete furnishing of the home.

We wish to compliment the management upon the high grade merchandise offered the public and recommend to all readers its "Friendly Service" which is not surpassed by any institution in the city or state.

Rumford Falls Light & Power Co.

Located on Congress street in Rumford, Me., conduct one of the model utility concerns of the country, rendering complete and satisfactory service, which has greatly added in the up-building of the community not only as regards social and civic progress, but also has been a most important factor in the growth of Rumford and vicinity. Truly this is a twentieth century organization under direction of competent and public spirited officers. One of the most popular institutions within the city's borders and one whose many patrons have found always willing and anxious to do everything possible both to provide the most modern service and to assist in all matters that concern the good of the community. Popularly known throughout this part of the country as "A Partner with the Public."

Constantly in touch with the manufacturers and markets of electrical appliances, this company is in a position by reason of their buying power to offer the very highest merchandise in electrical appliances of all descriptions, at reasonable prices. Their stock is large and varied, so when in need of electrical appliances it will pay you to visit this department.

Service is most complete, covering adequate electric heat and power of the most modern and satisfactory character. The operation of a modern and successful electric light and power plant is an undertaking that requires services of men of vast experience, and comprehensive knowledge. This cannot be acquired in a day. It comes from long study and practical experience.

This company has this work in charge of experts. It is a large concern with ample capital, organization and resources. It has made electric light, heat and power service its business. Therefore, any community is fortunate in having such a modern and efficient concern to solve the difficult problem of adequate and efficient service so satisfactorily as this company is solving it for the cities and towns which it supplies. It appears to us that they have evidenced a civic economy and municipal wisdom which is conducive to progress and expansion.

One of the most important features of their contribution to the progress of the community is their modern and valuable power service. This renders the territory served by them a most desirable location for industrial plants and enterprises and adds materially to the attraction of the community within a radius of many miles. The importance of such admirable and adequate power service cannot be too emphatically stated.

We wish to state that the management and assistants have taken commendable interest in all propositions that furthered public improvements and that they have been willing and anxious to aid in the expansion and growth of the community at all times. Therefore it has merited the popularity and liberal support that is received and we predict that when each town in the community has become a metropolis this company will continue to administer to our light, heat, and power needs in the same admirable manner.

PROGRESSIVE FIRMS AID IN PROGRESS

The write-ups appearing in this edition have been prepared by competent newspaper men who endeavor to establish closer trade relations between the merchant and consumer. Highly commendable are the ethics used by the various firms in their approach for business.

The expense of this edition is paid for by the various firms whose names appear as material and labor used in the production. Every article on this page is a paid advertisement.

A COMMON CHARACTERISTIC

So many of us are in a hurry and don't know where we are going. It is characteristic of the age — constantly seeking a new thrill, a new sensation.

A young man bought a new automobile, had it a few months and boasted that he had run it ten thousand miles. "Where have you been?" he was asked.

And he answered, "Oh no place in particular—just around."

Around expresses it — traveling around in circles.

He had not in search of a thrill that he had never experienced before. And he had been no place.

And many folks not to young are endeavoring to live on thrills.

There are people who literally tremble at the thought of being left at home one evening with themselves.

The art of enjoying an evening of relaxation with a good book has largely been lost, because of the nervous unrest that abounds, and the demands of the multiplying activities that take us away from home.

As a people we very generally have ceased to form opinions of our own, based upon sound judgment, but are content to accept secondhand views, being moved by selfish appeals that are based upon prejudice or greed or pettiness.

We may have wonderful machines to do our work and for our amusement, but no machine will ever take the place of the mind.

The greatness of America will spread and have a benign influence over the world, due to our per capita intelligence, rather than from our per capita wealth.

THE BOY

By Herbert Hoover

From the president's address delivered recently at a dinner of the Boy Scouts of America in Washington.

Together with his sister, the boy is the most precious possession of the American home. I cannot think that one of the sad things of life is that they will grow up. Literature and lore have established our boys in varied relations to life, as a growing animal of superlative promise, to be fed and watered and kept warm; as a periodic nuisance; as a joy forever; as the incarnation of destruction, as the father of the man; as the child of inquiry; as the problem of our times and the hope of the nation.

In any event, he is a complex of cells teeming with affection, filled with curiosity as to every mortal thing, radiating sunlight to all the world, endowed with dynamic energy and the impelling desire to take exercise on all occasions. He is a perpetual problem to his parents, and the wisdom in his upbringing consists more often in the determination of what to do with him next rather than in what he shall do when he goes out into the cold world.

THE EDUCATED MAN

The outstanding quality of an educated man is the ability to observe, comprehend and analyze. The fundamental purpose of education is to train the mind.

The useful man is the man with the trained mind. Such a man can turn to any problem, and by study can analyze it. He may lack professional knowledge and skill but he can direct others to that end, and can perceive the steps necessary to a solution.

The school room is not the only place where minds are trained, and where the power of observation and analysis is developed. Men are educated in stores, shops, and offices, just as surely as in the foremost universities of the world.

College or no college the man who has succeeded in training himself to observe, comprehend and analyze is a valuable asset to his community. He is a man who is willing to learn, and who is willing to teach.

Barbara (whose first tooth has just dropped out) — Mummy, mummy, what's I'm coming to present!

CHANGING TIMES

Who can remember the time when a fellow in need of a shave and haircut had only to take a squint along the curb for a red, white and blue barber pole? Or when a fellow could satisfy his appetite in a lunch room, buy his spectacles at an optician, buy his daily necessities at a grocery and butcher shop, take it home to a cottage and have it cooked by a long-haired wife, buy his clothes at the clothing store, have his physical ailments cured by the family doctor and be buried by an undertaker.

But "them days have gone forever." If he is not adept with a safety razor, he must tie himself to a tonsorial parlor or masseur to get rid of a few days' growth, and then he finds a shop full of women folks waiting their turn with the champion barber.

Once upon a time a hand-me-down and a derby graced a dummy on the flag stores outside the clothing, and in those days a fellow never had to look up a sartorial arcade for a two-pants suit and a four-in-hand.

When a man wanted a "ham-and" in those happy, bygone days, he never thought of looking up a restaurant, a cafe, a cafeteria, or a roof garden.

Butcher shops and grocery stores suited our respected ancestors and they thrived on the fare, but modernity must call them delicatessen shops and markets. A watch repairman was a watch repairman, but now he is a horologist, and the modern jeweler is a lapidary. An optician was an optician, but in these days he is an optometrist.

A couple of decades ago a mortician was just a plain undertaker. In the succeeding years he has been described as an embalmer and a funeral director.

Time was when a cottage was a cottage, not a bungalow; a balcony was a balcony like the budding Romeo and Juliet used, not a mezzanine floor; an automobile was an automobile, not a coupe, sedan, laudauet, brougham or berlina; socks were not hosiery; ties were not cravats; dress-makers were not modistes; doctors were neither surgeons, specialists, pathologists, aleopaths, homeopaths, osteopaths, chiropractors and chiroprudists.

There may be a reason, but what is it?

WHAT MAKES US PROSPEROUS?

The following are basic conditions that work constantly for prosperity in America:

Natural endowments in minerals, fertile soil, navigable rivers and lakes, forest ranges and climate.

The willing habit of work that characterizes the American people as a whole.

Individual initiative, equality of opportunity and lack of class or group discrimination.

The belief of business in individualism as an incentive to invention, production and special effort. Earlier isolation made it necessary, and resources made it possible for the country to become largely self-sustaining and a diversity of manufactures resulted.

No interior trade barriers to hinder the flow of commerce.

Widespread schooling. Potentially good minds "have not had to go to waste because of thwarted opportunity."

The conflict between capital and labor giving way to cooperation, with the result that the output per worker increased in mine and factory and on the railway and the farm through the intelligent application of raw machinery, scientific management and the liberal use of capital. The ability of people to consume increased proportionately.

High wages, the relative contentment of workers, their understanding attitude toward the mechanization of industry, and the resultant mass production constitute "another firm basis for the continuance of prosperity."

The development of organized research as an ally of industry.

Our government has co-operated with business "as no other governments ever has." —Julius Klein in New York Times.

ALWAYS MERRY AND BRIGHT

A certain club has replaced its familiar black-robed servants with young, and sometimes pretty, waitresses. One of the old die-hard members who had strongly opposed the idea dropped in to learn one day.

"How's the duck today?" he inquired, glancing at the girl who came to serve him.

"Oh, I'm all right," said the waitress, smiling. "How are you, sir?" —Brooklyn Eagle.

FOGG'S LEATHER STORE

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN TRUNKS, BAGS, SUIT CASES, HARNESS AND RACE HORSE SUPPLIES

Located at No. 123 Main in Lewiston, Me., featuring dog and horse harness, collars, leads, leather goods of all kinds, under the able direction of a management well informed in this special field of endeavor.

What is the secret of their success? We can explain it in a very few words. Buying only high grades of merchandise leather and materials and doing their part at a price fair to all and guarantee back of every job that leaves the shop. This is an establishment and going concern serving this community with the newest and best to be had in their line. Experience has taught them the public's wants, needs and preferences and enables them to render intelligent and capable service. In other words, they stand on the thought of always making good—not excuses.

During the flow of the passing years this house has been meeting the needs and demands of the trade and has branched out as one of the leading harness concerns in this part of the country.

The name Fogg's Leather Store is well known throughout this section as headquarters for all that pertains to the highest quality of leather goods at the lowest possible prices.

Not only have they added new customers from year to year, but have held the trade of their old customers because they guarantee satisfaction in each and every transaction.

The management is of wide experience in this business and stands high in the commercial world, prominent in social circles, and a booster for the city in every way, and every day. They are on the list of desirable citizens, on excellent terms with their competitors, never speaking of them in derogatory terms, treating them with courtesy and respect; in turn they hold them in high esteem and are ever ready to extend to them the glad hand.

CORTELL'S

MEN'S CLOTHING AND WOMEN'S READY-TO-WEAR

Located at No. 197 Main in Berlin, Me., is under the direction of a management of excellent taste, featuring high grade goods at reasonable prices, and is one of the really economical trade centers of the community.

Individuality and distinctiveness of design is noted in specialties and ready to wear from this establishment and this is in a large degree responsible for the extensive trade of the store.

They operate a general department store, carrying a complete line of ladies' misses', men's and boys' ready-to-wear, and a complete line of everything to be found in a store of this character. The family can be supplied from tip to toe at this popular establishment.

Operating as they do upon such a tremendous scale, their large buying power not only makes possible unusual price concessions, but also permits them to be first with the latest fashions in the highest quality. They exercise wonderful taste which is responsible in a large degree for the excellent patronage.

age of the store. The principle upon which the store is operated is that of furnishing individual and distinctive specialties and garments most reasonably, and meeting any and all competition as to style and price. This accounts for the fact that the establishment is the mecca for the well dressed ladies and gents of the community.

In this age of high prices this store is recognized as one place where men and women of this community can be fitted out in garments of the day at a reasonable figure. People marvel at the excellent merchandise, that can be obtained here at prices lower than those prevailing on the usual run of merchandise of the day.

It is a pleasure for us to direct your attention to this store as one of the important features of this community's efficiency. Its management is progressive and public spirited and numbers its patrons by the thousands. It is truly a modern and popular establishment.

CURSE ON CONTRACT BREAKERS

Cases of real-estate purchasers failing to complete the contract under which they bought property were rare in the days of ancient Egypt, Babylon or Assyria, because they dreaded the consequences promised in the contract to the purchaser who would break it. The curse of Nimrod, king of heaven and earth; of Siro, the sun god, and of Osiris and Osad were but few of the afflictions assured the one who wedged out of a deal. These things were written into the contract, so that there may be no mistaking the importance of the transaction.

SETTING THE TABLE

In setting the table care should be taken to place the silver so that the handles are in an even line, about one inch from the edge of the table. The knives, of course, with their cutting edges turned in, all spoons and the fork on the left of the service plate. Only those pieces actually to be used are put on the table and they are placed in order of their use. The dessert spoon and fork, the fruit knife and a fork are always brought in on their respective plates. After-dinner coffee spoons belong on the saucers of the cups.

DENISON-GREENLAW CO.

Located on Cottage street in Norway, Me., operates a lumber business that has built a reputation far and wide for the highest quality at the most reasonable prices, and a service that is both complete and satisfactory. It is one of the old reliable, yet progressive and up-to-date firms of the state.

As the general purpose of this edition is to give both the local and outside world an adequate idea of our progress and the general excellence of our various products we deem it quite appropriate to devote this space to this well-known firm.

The men who originated this enterprise obtained a liberal education in the school of experience and supplemented this with a keen insight into the markets of the world and with this desirable foundation they equipped themselves to render an unexcelled service in lumber. Then the management has had in its employ only men of experience, many of whom have been with the company for some time thus assuring the public of a high state of efficiency and uniformity in their products which find a large and ready sale.

The active operation of the plant is in the hands and under the direction of men who are so well known that any further remarks are unnecessary but we cannot refrain from stating that this enterprise is fortunate in having as its active head men so thoroughly familiar with all the details of the lumber business and whose executive ability and familiarity with business conditions has kept the firm abreast of the times.

Through their straightforward dealing with the public the management has made friends for the company and they have always taken an active interest in the affairs of its employees and a commendable interest in their fellow man, realizing that a concern located in a community that is not progressive in its character and the because of its environment. This is without question one of the country's most important and valued companies.

ANSWERING DUTY'S CALL.

Duck—Can you give me a definition of an actor?

Private—Sure. He's the fellow who's always ready to lay down your life for his country.

Little Johnnie: "Mother, is it true that an apple a day keeps the doctor away?"

Mother: "Yes Johnnie, why?"

Johnnie: "Cause if it is, I kept about ten doctors away to-day, but I think one'll have to come pretty soon."

Two little buddies were comparing notes: "What does your father do when you ask him questions?" one asked.

"He generally says, 'I'm busy now, don't bother me,'" replied the other.

"Then when I go out of the room he looks in the encyclopedia."

"I always encourage my husband to recline in an easy chair and put his feet on top of the radiator."

"Why not?"

"When he goes to bed there is usually about four dollars in small change in the chair."

W. W. RIPLEY

MANUFACTURER AND DISTRIBUTOR OF ICE

Located at South Paris, Me., is headed one of the most important industries, which has often demonstrated its value to the public in a most impressive manner and is a concern which is under a most progressive and public spirited management. Plant as nearly fire-proof as modern science and human ingenuity makes possible.

As the world's greatest authorities have approved the recent inventions in equipment they have been all adopted by this company and this coupled with the maintenance here of one of the most modern and up-to-date plants in the section, is responsible for the very satisfactory service rendered to their patrons to the county and for the fact that every patron of the concern is also a loyal supporter and a constant booster for it.

Pol Parrott Beauty Shoppe

BONAT AND REALISTIC PERMANENT AND FINGER WAVING
ALL BRANCHES OF BEAUTY CULTURE

Located at No. 4 Park in Lewiston, Me., is competent to handle every texture of hair. All permanent waving guaranteed.

Here will be found the most distinctive beauty shop which has gained a well merited patronage from among the most discriminating matrons and misses not only of the city but from the smaller towns and surrounding country as well. Study and experience on the part of the operators here places this beauty shop in the rank of professionals in their line and thoroughly competent to advise patrons as to the treatment which will best respond to your own particular case.

They are especially skilled and equipped for the modern care of the hair, such as cutting, trimming, massaging, shampooing, marcelling and permanent waving, as well as the highest grade facial treatments known to the cosmetician's art.

A permanent waving specialist has come to the defense of the country girl and her city sister, saying, "It is not vanity that makes a woman desire wavy hair, it is natural impulse. Every one had curly hair, and it was curly in damp weather than when it was dry. The rain that today takes the curl out of a woman's hair put more curl in it in the old days and it does today when the hair is restored to natural functioning."

"Hair after the permanent wave process, is nearly restored to its natural condition and readily responds thereafter to the natural heat of the body and natural moisture of the atmosphere. On an extremely dry day a damp brush will increase the curl instead of taking it out. These things all go to prove that nature will assist the permanent wave."

It is openly admitted by skin specialists that activity of the body lends brightness to the face and makes one appear young. Still there are signs of age that appear even with a healthy, active body, and at this shop the giving away lines and flabby muscles are remedied. The treatment chosen by the experienced management is the one which is the best suited for each case.

Both the social and business woman of today have demanded the full value of correct personal appearance. The modern beauty shop of today is no small item in the commercial life of the community. The artists at this place will multiply your good points and materially decrease your bad ones. Appointments can be made in any of their busy departments by phone.

John W. Kern & Co.

Located at No. 290 Main in Lewiston, Me., offers a most modern and complete plumbing and heating service. Keeps a large supply of materials on hand and can furnish you any kind of fixtures or supplies. Features city and country plumbing and repair work.

With the rapid development of suburban as well as city life and the demand of all to have the latest in plumbing and heating equipment the demands of the modern plumber for versatility are far greater than ever. They are meeting this condition and have provided for every need of the day.

They have a stock of bath tubs, bath room equipment, sinks of all sizes, and laundry trays. These are furnished in various ways and no matter what equipment you may desire in your home or business building you will find a look at their stock will not be amiss. They do quite a business with the contractors as well as home builders and thus offer a service that is complete.

The shops are equipped with the very latest of machinery for the carrying on of a complete contracting and repair business. Here are employed shop men who understand all phases of the work and are master plumbers of note. Repair men are kept constantly on the alert and are rushed to any place where necessity demands.

They have an excellent plumbing engineering department and are competent to solve all plumbing and heating problems. They will be glad to furnish plans or give an estimate or will go according to any plans you may have. All work is executed according to the rules of the national association, the city and state codes and conforms in all details to the regulations of the board of health.

They are prepared to look after plumbing in isolated places as well as where connected with city sewerage and will take any country place and install a complete system that will make it like a city home.

In this review we are glad to compliment John W. Kern & Co., upon the excellent service which is making this community an attractive place in which to live and transact business, making homes more healthful and comfortable and in prolonging life.

PROGRESSIVE FIRMS ADD IN PROGRESS

The write-ups appearing in this edition have been prepared by competent newspaper men who endeavor to establish closer trade relations between the merchant and consumer. Highly commendable are the ethics used by the various firms in their approach for business.

The expense of this edition is paid for by the various firms whose names appear as material and labor used in the production. Every article on this page is a paid advertisement.

MACHINE AGE JUSTICE

We have heard much in recent years on how the machine is taking jobs away from the worker. Industries now produce more with fewer men than they did even a few years ago.

And now behold. One of the oldest and most highly honored of professions is endangered by the use of the machine. A lie detector can be brought into the courts, it is said, to determine whether the defendant is telling the truth or presenting a good case for himself.

"Now where," any man may ask, "does the attorney fit into the new system of mechanized jurisprudence?"

All a court needs is a group of competent mechanics to operate the machine. The defendant will have his own mechanics to make adjustments in his favor. The state will have mechanics elected by the public. And the jury need merely bring in a verdict in accordance with the operation of the lie detector.

There used to be an old joke that went something like this. Visitor: "What are you in prison for?"

Prisoner: "I had a poor lawyer." In the future the prisoner will answer: "I retained an incompetent mechanic."

The writer sincerely hopes that no one takes this seriously. The machine has contributed much or all to our present standard of living, but when it is introduced into the administration of justice, it is gaining just a bit too much headway.

The writer is in a business dependent upon a number of rather complicated machines, and from personal experience he would rather trust his future welfare in a court of justice to human beings rather than to complicated machinery.

Scientific marvels are becoming commonplace that we are beginning to place just a bit too much confidence in the machine. A few years ago a quack out in San Francisco devised an apparatus to diagnose disease at long distance. The afflicted individual merely sent in a sample of his blood, and the machine would give him an accurate diagnosis of his case, including diseases of body and mind, political affiliations, religious beliefs, and what have you.

Any man with an ounce of common sense would have pronounced such a fraud preposterous, but many self-appointed intellectuals went to the defense of the doctor who devised the apparatus. We're nothing about that machine now but the fact remains that people of today like to be manipulated as well as they did when Harum profited thereby. All one has to do is to appeal to the general credulity over things of science.

POSSIBLE TO FLOAT FOR DAYS IN THE GARMENT

A suit of clothes in which it would be a positive pleasure to be shipwrecked has been perfected. Except for the face the costume covers the entire body like an overall. Fitted to the head is a hood like that of the conventional man's gown, but larger and thicker.

In the material of this hood and also between the outer layer and the lining of the rest of the costume spaces are provided which can be inflated with air or stuffed with a light material like spongy paper fiber.

The outer layer of the garment is waterproofed and arrangements are provided to keep water from seeping inside the suit at the wrists and neck. Thus the wearer is encased completely in a floating garment which serves both as life preserver and as protection for many hours against the cold.

The large, thick hood floats high in the water, thus making it impossible for the wearer to "capsize" and find his head downward, as has happened with some previous life saving garments.

If the wearer makes no effort as to be will float automatically on his back as though lying in bed, and almost as warmly.

It is claimed, however, that one advantage of the new garment is that it is not necessary. The wearer can paddle himself about.

AUBURN ELECTRIC SHOP

FEATURES SILENT AUTOMATIC & HARDINGE OIL BURNERS, ALSO THE COPELAND REFRIGERATOR AND LYRIC RADIOS MADE BY WURLITZER

Located at No. 27 Court in Auburn, Me., home of the famous Lyric Radios, is headquarters for electrical supplies. Many hours of routine work can be saved the housewife. Service, the foundation policy of this firm. They have many electric appliances featuring famous vacuum, electrical washer, dish washers and all other appliances that have turned housekeeping into a pleasant task.

"Do it with electricity." This indeed is the slogan of the age. And well it may be. Where we did two things electrically ten years ago, we do a score now. And each new task that electricity performs takes away just that much from the tiresome routine which sometimes makes life a burden. To make life pleasanter, more liveable in the homes of this community is no indirect aim of this up-to-date electrical appliance shop; it is the primary aim of this business.

Name almost any of those things which the average woman dislikes to do about the house, and there is a device or machine for sale which will do it, if it does not do the work entirely it takes the drudgery out of it. No woman likes to wash. It is almost proverbial that women kill themselves over a washboard. Electric washers for sale here do the family washing for the lady of the house by pressing buttons. Electric irons take much of the annoyance and work out of ironing. Vacuum cleaners are famous for the work they do. But there are also electric dishwashers here, even electric egg beaters.

Acquaintance with the electrical supplies business also enable these men to buy in quantities large enough to be able to sell these labor saving machines at the lowest possible prices. Their stock, of course, is made up from lines made by the leading electrical appliance manufacturers.

This firm does not only sell you the appliances but it has a corps of installation experts who will see that your machines are properly set up in your homes, and will be on hand to insure that everything starts working properly.

The members of this firm are men who have long held a high place in the community. Their names connected with any business would mean that business was conducted on the square. They are men, too, who believe in sparing no effort to serve the community. This policy is not limited to their business life, but permeates their whole activity as citizens of a community.

She came into the police station with a picture in her hand. "My husband has disappeared," she sobbed. "Here is his picture. I want you to find him."

The inspector looked at the photograph. "Why?" he asked.

"I saw a young man trying to kiss your daughter," said the mischief-maker.

"And did he?" asked the mother.

"No."

"Then it wasn't my daughter."

F. R. CONANT CO.

Located at No. 54 Washington, in Auburn, Me., is one of the firms in this section that offers the best of service and prices that are so reasonable as to encourage building of new homes and enterprises. They will be glad to submit estimates. They offer a very large stock and prompt delivery so that no work will be delayed. Guaranteed satisfaction, "Uniform in Quality and Prices."

With a vision of a greater state and community always in mind this popular firm, which operates one of the best supply establishments in this section of the state, has become an important factor in the development of this section. While it has been their object to obtain a fair and honest profit from their extensive dealings in lumber and building materials, the guiding influence of this company has always been the determination to furnish the highest grade goods at prices so reasonable that the extension and beautification of the city and section would progress rapidly and in great leaps and bounds.

Lumber, lath, shingles, roofing, siding, and all other demands of the builder are furnished by this progressive firm. By purchasing to advantage when the market is right and employing only the most experienced help they are able to offer this high-grade of goods at prices so reasonable as to encourage the extension and beautification of homes and enterprises.

Under able management they are able to offer a service that is most complete and this enables them to have any quantity desired.

There is no establishment in this section that has a greater influence for the betterment upon the building industry. Contractors have come to know that whatever they desire in the line carried can be secured from this firm with a knowledge that it will be of the highest grade consistent with the price.

The sales force at their offices are thoroughly familiar with all problems in the line in which these materials are used and can talk with intelligence on the kind of material needed and the quantity necessary. They are expert building material mathematicians and you will always find their figures correct.

In making this review of the community we are glad to compliment them upon their very comprehensive lines, their excellent service in all departments and refer them to all of our readers.

DUMB ANIMALS USED TO INFLECT DEATH PENALTY

The guillotine was used in Halifax, England, in the sixteenth century for the execution of criminals. E. H. W. Myerstein, poet and writer, has called attention to a description of the way they had in Halifax in the sixteenth century of chopping off the heads of criminals condemned of horse, cattle, or sheep stealing. The description is given in Bishop Gibson's "Briannia" (1695). According to Halifax law: "If a felon was taken within the liberty with goods stolen out of the liberties of the forest of Hardwick, he should after three markets or meeting days within the town of Halifax, next after his apprehension, be taken to the gibbet there and have his head cut off from his body." There were provisions that the thief must be caught in the act or have the thing stolen on him, or confess. A miserable thief being found guilty was brought to the scaffold, and if it were a horse, ox, or any living creature that he had stolen, that creature was to be the executioner. This was the method: The ax was drawn up by a pulley and fastened with a pin to the side of the scaffold, the beast stolen being tied by a cord to the pin. Then at the given moment, when the prisoner's head was across the block, the jurors who were present would raise each one hand, and the ball of the animal would draw the pin, when the ax would drop across the neck of the unfortunate thief. If the execution was not done by the beast then the ballist or his servant had to cut the rope releasing the ax.

There is beauty of a different and stupendous kind in the bridges that connect Manhattan island with Brooklyn or the mainland. Your first feeling at these bridges is always one of admiration even awe, for modern engineering. To stand on the East river docks and see the gigantic wire-rope, air-belted of the Brooklyn bridge, go leaping up into space and descend in a curve of marvelous grace into the granite gorges of lower Manhattan is to experience a sensation no other city on earth can offer you. It would have been from the foothill of this bridge, too, that Wordsworth would have written his sonnet to Manhattan: "We wonder in what spirit of science saw?—Walter Prichard Eaton, in 'Green Trails and Upland Pastures.'"

Mr. Jackson—"When I got this bottle of tonic home and read the label, I saw it wasn't meant for me so I brought it back."

Druggist—"That's a good tonic." Mr. Jackson—"Maybe it is but it says on the bottle 'for adults' and that's something I never had in my life."

Bates Remnant Store

At 63 Lisbon St., Lewiston, is The Bates Remnant Store that offers a vast array of merchandise lower than the usual prices and in a center of trade that attracts many buyers.

The Bates Remnant Store of Lewiston is a center of trade that has many customers from this section as people go many miles to obtain the excellent bargains offered here.

The Bates Remnant Store is headquarters for the latest of styles and the best of materials in all their merchandise. The remnants are overruns from the mills and are offered at these prices to close out the lines. The manager is an excellent buyer and a judge of quality and thus is able to secure for the people merchandise at prices that mean real economy.

In the dry goods department will be found a very complete line of dry goods and yard goods which has been purchased by one of the foremost buyers of the state. Whatever your needs may be in this line it is advisable to first look over the stock at this popular store.

The stock is excellently displayed and one shopping in this store is able to make selections very readily as you see exactly what you desire and the prices are marked in plain figures.

The salespeople are accommodating and will be pleased to assist anyone in making purchases here.

In this review we are pleased to compliment the manager upon the policy of the store and to point out that he has located his establishment where it is easy to park and where one will have no trouble in shopping in any way.

Continental Paper & Bag Corporation

Located on Lowell street, Rumford, is a modern paper mill which gives employment to many local people—this industry is an economic factor in the life of this section of the state and receives support for the part it is playing in the development of this section of the state, manufacture paper, paper bags and twine—A. O. Stone is manager.

The Continental Paper and Bag Corp. of Rumford is one of the community's most valuable assets, bringing trade activity and business here from afar and one that is also endorsed by local people, their products being very popular here at home.

They have a modern equipped paper factory, located here close to the lumber supply and with both water and railroad shipping at their command. This gives them many advantages over other mills in the general market as well as the local one. The fact that the lumber is obtained here brings much trade activity to the state and many people are given employment in preparing the lumber and in the factory. Location, supply and shipping facilities make this an industry founded upon a solid basis and one that will continue to prosper and meet any and all competition in the market of the country.

The Continental Paper & Bag Corp. is equipped with machinery much of which is of their special design for the manufacture of paper by the most modern process. Everything has been provided for the efficiency, convenience and safety of all the people employed here. The working conditions are the very best and men are employed who have been with the concern some time and thoroughly understand the art of paper making.

The people of the community owe a debt of gratitude to The Continental Paper & Bag Corp., as they bring money in which is paid out in wages deposited in our banks, and finally find its way into the pockets of the many. The local public has always been loyal in their support of this industry and are all boosters for its products on all occasions.

In this review we are glad to point out the value of this growing industry and refer their products to the people of this part of the state.

FIRST AUBURN TRUST CO.

Located at No. 3 Court in Auburn, Me., has come into prominence by reason of their perfectly complete and reliable service. Under direction of well known financiers who have guided this well known bank to substantial progress evidenced, by the large business it enjoys and its enviable reputation for safety to depositors.

One of the institutions that gives stability to the financial and commercial interests of the county is the First Auburn Trust Co. From the day that it first opened its doors to the people it has always been under the management of conservative yet progressive men. Men of broad and liberal views in the matter of caring for their patrons' needs, yet men who have carefully guarded the best interests of the depositors by demanding the fullest security and adhering to the cardinal law of finance. This inviolable policy has gained for this well known bank the greatest confidence of the people of all the surrounding country and among its customers you will find some of the community's most prominent men and firms.

The interest department is a great convenience to the people as this is a perfectly safe place to keep money and then it draws interest right along. A specialty is made of small accounts and the very best attention is given. Many people from the surrounding territory have found this a very desirable place to accumulate quite a fund for the proverbial rainy day.

This is one of the absolutely essential institutions which makes possible the expansion and growth not only of the community at large but of the individual business and enterprises. It also promotes the progress and happiness of the individual homes by providing modern saving facilities. They maintain a special savings information department as well as a commercial handling information department.

The trust department is a most accommodating feature of the institution and performs all of the numerous duties incumbent upon the comprehensive service of this department. They are prepared to act as trustee, executor, guardian, or in any fiduciary capacity whatever.

The individual cannot render the same safe and satisfactory services of this character as can the trust company, organized and equipped for the purpose, because in such work it is responsible, expert, tireless and deathless. It is never sick, incapacitated or away, it is always impartial and unprejudiced.

In making this review of the onward progress of the community, we wish to compliment the First Auburn Trust Co., its officers and directors, and to direct the attention of all of our readers to this strong financial depository.

HOWARD E. TYLER, D. C. CHIROPRACTOR

Located at No. 111 Main in Norway, Me., is an eminent chiropractor engaging a large and well merited clientele from the city and adjoining territory. As we think of the afflictions that mankind is accidently subjected to, we look at the smooth exterior of our body and wonder why.

But the more we know about ourselves, the easier we can understand cause and effect.

In the first stages of life, the principal thing to be noticed is the brain. The brain being first, must be the medium through which Nature builds a complete body.

The baby is born with its organism working normally. As long as nature can continue her constructive energy, the baby will grow and remain normal in every respect until, like an old machine, it will finally wear out. If we were once well and normal, why are we sick now?

This eminent chiropractor will prove to you that the so-called diseases of the stomach, dyspepsia, headache, neuralgia, nervous disease and the nervous system are due to interference with the constructive energy, particularly along through pressure of the spinal nerves, causing disease wherever these nerves extend.

By making an analysis of the spine he can detect any displacement and by simple adjustments can remove the pressure which causes disease. Good health naturally follows.

The human body is so constituted that it is "unnatural" for disease to creep in without cause.

The nerve system is so designed to give perfect health to all organs and keep them repaired. If through abnormal curvature, joints, strains, falls or wrenches at some time in life, the movable bones of the spine are displaced, even slightly, they press on these nerves and obstruct the flow of the life energy. Weakness and disease result in the organs that these nerves supply.

Look into the picture—the new health center, Dr. Howard E. Tyler, is to establish a large number of technicians from the people of this community, many of whom are among our best citizens. Information and cost of your training. Then pass the word along to your efforts toward health. We will have a most convenient location to Howard E. Tyler, D. C., who has a reputation above reproach, and among our most successful chiropractors.

EXCEL CLEANSERS & DYERS

Located at No. 140 Main in Auburn, Me., specializing in handling dry cleaning and dyeing by parcel post, returning it in this manner from all the adjacent country, and returning it in the same manner. Many satisfied patrons in all sections send in their work by mail.

Their parcel post service is a very desirable feature. All you have to do is to send your work by parcel post addressed to this firm and tell them what you want done. They will give you metropolitan service and return your work promptly by parcel post. Hundreds find this a most convenient system of having work done.

This establishment is popular with all who have tried it. That they put forth their best effort is shown in the satisfaction in each case. The establishment is splendidly equipped for all classes of dry cleaning and no work is too difficult to handle in the most satisfactory manner.

A specialty is made of cleaning ladies' garments, and they also have a list of men for whom they do this class of work that includes almost every man in town who cares anything at all about his personal appearance. Their pressing of garments is always correctly done and promptly called for and delivered.

The dry cleaning system used not only cleans your clothes, but thoroughly renovates them in the most sanitary manner. It also turns them out in the most approved style with the latest fashionable color that compares the work of so many cleaning establishments. The latest cleaning and renovating machinery in their plant makes it possible for them to handle the most delicate fabrics and turn them out so they will look like new. One of the features that recommends the service is that the price of work is very high and it is a well known fact that modern cleaners work such as theirs preserve the colors and prolongs the life of the garment.

We are pleased to compliment this establishment upon the very satisfactory service rendered and to urge all our readers as regards cleaning and dyeing they can do no better than to send their work over to them.

ARCHITECTS

Located at No. 11 Lisbon in Lewiston, Me., are architects of proven ability in the art of designing every kind of building for the purpose of civil life.

Many beautiful homes, schools, offices and other fine buildings in this section of the state are examples of their efficient service. These buildings are not only convenient for their special purpose, but characterize the unity, beauty and grandeur which only a master workman can produce. The artistic ability and able advice of these careful and reliable architects have met the universal approval of all that have had business dealings with them.

But be prudent in your selection of architects. For in this age of substitution and improper construction of building, it is not only necessary to employ architects, but it is absolutely essential that you secure those whose plans conform to modern building codes. Absolutely so, for a window out of place or a stairway in the wrong position, might ruin, not only your home but your happiness for life. It is again essential that the best material is specified and the work itself properly executed.

These reliable architects can draw plans for anything you might have in contemplation, from the moderate dwelling to the finest country estate. The service is most complete and in the designing of public buildings, business blocks, theatres, factories, or in fact every kind of building. They are most able and efficient.

They thoroughly understand the various styles of architecture and can give you exactly what you desire. Being conversant with the correct and best materials for building you will find that the specifications are scientifically and accurately made and the supervision and work are carried out to the exact letter.

All of the other features are equally as well handled and every detail is given the most painstaking care. Honesty and efficiency to a marked degree and straightforwardness in all business policies have placed their services much in demand. They will advise and assist you in planning any building you have in mind at this time.

These able architects are prominent, active and reliable in their chosen field, and we wish to recommend them to all our readers who may be in need of anything in their line.

La Mode Beauty Shoppe

Located at No. 14 Lisbon in Lewiston, Me., is the popular beauty shop which specializes in all the features of the art of beautification. The efficient service in this respect is enjoyed by the most discriminating ladies in the city and surrounding territory.

This establishment is under the personal direction of a management well informed in all the features of the beautification of the body. The work itself is on a plane that will insure patrons of this shop the best in beauty parlor work.

Marcelling, fine finger waving, permanent waving, manicuring, scalp and facial treatments are features of the work done by specialists whose advice and service can be relied upon as they have made a special study and are adequately prepared in advanced methods of modern beauty culture.

The "bob" has democratized the art of beautification. The universal popularity of the bob has led to the adoption of other aids to personal adornment, including massages, wrinkle removing and tissue building. At this shop this work is in charge of skin specialists whose practical experience and scientific knowledge are applied to remedy the giveaway lines and restore activity to the unhealthy muscles of the face. This treatment assists in retaining the beauty of youth and also aids in removing those signs of age which will make one appear younger.

A complete line of reliable toilet preparations is always in stock and you will be cheerfully advised as to the correct use.

Appointments receive courteous and prompt attention, for it is considered a pleasure to serve you at this well known shop. Telephone when in need of beauty parlor work, and you will be immediately listed with many satisfied customers who are praising the prompt and reliable service.

We take great pleasure in referring all the readers to this shop as the place where "Millady Fair" will receive satisfactory treatment and expert advice pertaining to her personal appearance. We suggest that you give this shop a trial, if you are not already one of its patrons, and after you have done so we feel sure you will also praise the efficient and reliable service of this popular beauty shop.

NORWAY BUICK CO.

Located at No. 21 in Norway, Me., is one of the most complete automobile institutions in the state devoted to the sales and service of the New Marquette and Buick Automobiles.

This progressive firm is giving Marquette and Buick owners a service that is distinctly metropolitan and equal that of any in the largest cities.

The new Marquette is a great achievement in the automotive world and can truly be said, the most complete car ever offered in the $1000 field. The Marquette is a very complete car, giving the people everything needed in a modern automobile. It is a full sized car mounted on a 114-inch wheelbase. The body is by Fisher giving owners the finest closed body craftsmanship. Go in and see the Marquette today and see what marvelous value Buick has created. Extraordinary features are combined to make the Marquette the most complete car in the $1000 field.

There have been three million Buick motor cars manufactured and of this great army of fine automobiles ninety per cent are still running, thus explaining the popularity and prominent position of Buick.

Each one has the famous valve-in-head motor and each one is offered by Buick as a modern car at a price that is the greatest motor car value ever offered. When you have seen and examined these current Buick models you will readily say that it is no wonder that the entire automobile industry "kiss up and takes notice" that "When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them."

Among the many attractive features of the Buick are balanced wheels which add to smooth riding, a crank case ventilator and thermostat water control which makes change of oil necessary only four times a year. All models are furnished in new color combinations of Duco.

A special feature is their service to Buick owners. This means that they have men who have had wide experience on these cars and therefore when you leave your car here you know it will be in the hands of experts.

Those who purchase cars at this establishment may rest assured that they will be given the most metropolitan service offered in the largest cities. The result of this expert service is that patrons here will always use proper oil, fuel and supplies and that a slight adjustment will not become a serious trouble because of incompetent mechanics who are not familiar with their work.

The management is of wide experience and comprehensive knowledge where progressive activities in cooperation with Marquette and Buick owners have been essential in the building of a modern and metropolitan automotive service for the benefit of the city, and the surrounding country.

The only state that permits women to work twenty-four hours a day is the state of Maryland.

WHAT IS AN "EDUCATED MAN?"

(Selected)

"1. An educated man is one who is trained to use the tools of human intercourse with readiness, precision, and accuracy. We mean, especially, language and the rudiments of number."

"2. An educated man must be able to study and to think without guidance from others. He must be—some extent—a thinker, not a mere imitator."

"3. An educated man must have sufficient knowledge of nature to understand the main processes upon which human life and happiness depend."

"4. An educated man knows enough of history to enable him to understand the main achievements of man."

"5. An educated man is acquainted with the major resources for intellectual and aesthetic enjoyment. He knows nature, literature, music and the other arts sufficiently to choose superior to inferior enjoyments."

"6. An educated man is marked by his interests as well as by his trained abilities. His attention is habitually attracted by significant rather than trivial objects, events, pursuits, and enjoyments."

"7. An educated man must have not only this general culture, but also training for a specific occupation. Focused activity that is directed toward some sort of efficiency has to be included."

"8. An educated man must have toward his fellows the habitual attitudes that are commonly called ethical—such attitudes as honor and honesty, helpfulness and good will and cooperation."

"9. An educated man must have loyalties to at least some of the important organizations and institutions of society, such as one's family, one's country, one's church."

"10. If there is an inclusive meaning in life, the sort of education that I have been outlining should include some apprehension of, and feeling for, the divine. The ideally educated man will reverence God, and know how to worship."

To determine whether your education is still alive and growing, and not a dead and finished thing, Sherwood Eddy suggests answering the following questions:

"1. Am I learning to study and to think?"

"2. Am I getting the knowledge that I need most? Am I learning to enjoy things that are most worth while? Am I acquiring aesthetic appreciation of the significant values of life?"

"3. Am I living in the real world or in a corner apart? Am I learning to live, by living now; by acquiring some vital knowledge of the world and its real problems, by actually facing them and beginning to try to solve them now?"

"4. Am I evading or postponing life, playing about with its trifles in a thoughtless and unreal academic world?"

"5. Am I progressing, standing still, or going backward?"

"WOMAN'S RIGHTS" PIONEER

Dr. Mary Walker was born in Oswego, N. Y., 1822. She became a graduate physician at twenty-three years of age with a degree from Syracuse Medical College, New York. She commenced practice in Columbus, Ohio but soon returned to Rome, N. Y., where she practiced for some years. At the outbreak of the Civil war she was commissioned as first lieutenant to serve on the surgical staff of the Union forces. She always appeared in male attire. After four years' service she was awarded a congressional medal of honor for bravery. She then took to the lecture field, appearing in male attire, in either frock coat or evening dress. She died in February, 1919.

ONLY TRIFLE

"I suppose," a father remarked, "now that your boy is out of college, he expects to get the world on fire?"

"No," the second father replied, "he expects to get the world on fire."

MODERN BABY TRAVELS IN

SPLendor COMPARETIVELY

The modern baby rides in deluxe splendor, and is not aware of the fact. Evolution in transportation has played an important part in making it possible for the baby of today to be taken from place to place in comfort, and like all vehicles with wheels, today rivals its big brother, the automobile.

Back in Egyptian days, the babies were carried in shawls worn in front, in back or at the side. Peruvian and American Indian children were strapped in cradles which were suspended from the shoulders of their mothers. Ethiopian babies were stowed in baskets around which blankets were wrapped to include the mothers and their offspring. Eskimo mothers follow the practice of tucking their young in the wide tops of their sealskin boots.

The first record of a vehicle for baby's use is found on an ancient Egyptian vase of about 600 B. C. This shows the infant Hermes, messenger of the gods, lying on a sort of table fitted with rollers. Wandering North American Indians fastened the papoose to a board at the end of two poles which were attached to a pack-horse and dragged along the ground. An early Russian "go-cart" consisted of a forked limb of a tree with three bark wheels fastened together to form a body which was fastened to the limb by means of hide thongs. Rough solid wood wheels were used.

When the first baby carriage was wheeled along a New York street in Colonial days, it created a mild sensation. Later, a type following the lines of the phaeton—a style of horse-drawn vehicle once very popular before automobiles came—was the "faded" in a baby carriage. This had a dashboard, curtains and other accessories of its prototype. Various improvements followed until today "the flower of the family" rides in state in an extremely modern affair with rubber tires, aluminum and nickel chassis and other refinements. These coaches, viols with the automobile, are in as attractive colors as is the motor car of the proud parents.

Even in spite of campaigns of warning and efforts to educate automobile drivers regarding the necessity for approaching railroad crossings carefully the death toll exacted of carelessness continues.

The price is often paid by the innocent and helpless passengers in the machine. This is especially true in several cases in recent months of school buses struck by trains, with resulting casualties to the children on board.

The man at the wheel of a speeding motor often fails to appreciate the grave responsibility he assumes for other lives. What is true of the road hog, and the reckless speeder is also true of the driver who tries to beat the train. All too often, it is not alone the lives of such drivers and their passengers that are sacrificed to criminal folly, but trains are wrecked, with loss of lives among their crews and passengers.

Several states have attempted to curb the crowding demon by laws requiring a full stop at all main line crossings. There were many objections to these regulations. One type of official post clothed with police authority made a practice of taking the numbers of cars which they claimed had failed to stop at crossings where they lay in wait for luckless motorists, whom he halted before roadside courts. His practice became the regular business of fee officers in certain sections of the country and in several states the stop law was abolished on this and the additional ground that the danger of stalling on the tracks was enhanced by the full stop required.

Of course, the gradual elimination of grade crossings is the only effective solution of the problem. Until that can be accomplished the good sense and fairness of motorists' fairness not only to themselves, to those who ride with them and to the harassing engineers of fast trains and to the human freight they bear, must be relied upon to cut down crossing fatalities and human nature being what it is, that is also dependence. Man will take a chance, even with death.

SYMPATHETIC

Jack spent his holidays shopping with his aunt and was fascinated by the crowd, many of whom carried bright umbrellas. On reaching home that night he remarked: "Aunt, I want a flannel umbrella."

"A flannel umbrella? Not why?"

"To keep his skin warm," he said.

J. W. WHITE CO.

FEATURE BIRD'S SHINGLES AND ROOFING AND AMBLER

ASBESTOS SHINGLES

Located at No. 45-47 Lincoln in Lewiston, Me., features all kinds of roofing, including asphalt and shingled work. They are master roofers and have had the contract on many fine buildings as well as homes which stand as examples of their workmanship.

They employ a staff of expert workmen who thoroughly understand the laying of the roofs to the best advantage. These men will do your job and astonish you at the results that can be produced. Their work will be found thorough and tasteful and the entire service quick and satisfactory.

They are thoroughly equipped for both old or new work and the quality of the roofing material is of the latest and best known to the craft and has satisfactorily withstood the test of time. Among the qualifications of their brands of roofing are the fact that it is fire resisting, leak proof, lasts longer than shingle roofs and presents an appearance from an architectural standpoint that is very pleasing to the most critical.

They have completed many large contracts in this part of the state and their work has been found satisfactory by the patrons in every case.

Victor: "I've an awful corn on the bottom of my foot."

Sid: "That's a good place to have it. Nobody can step on it but you."

The roofs which they have placed are mute testimonials as to the proficiency of this firm and are to be seen throughout this part of the state in every direction.

Their roofing is as near permanent as roofing can be made and their prices have always been of the most moderate order. It therefore behooves you to confer with this firm as to what roofing is best adapted to your needs and at the same time get their prices on both work and material.

They are considered authority in this work and will be pleased at any time to assist you in selecting material and give you estimates on your work. They personally see that all work is executed during the time promised and according to the letter of the contract.

A convenient feature of this business is the repair department whereby you can have repairs made on your roof, whether it be slate, tile, tin or composition.

In this business review of the commercial activities of this section we are pleased to compliment them upon the economic position their efficient service merits.

San Francisco, Cleveland and Norfolk are the only cities in the United States that regulate the practice of tattooing.

RUMFORD FALLS TRUST CO.

Located at 108 Congress in Rumford, Me., is one of the strong financial institutions of this section, and numbers its friends and patrons in legions throughout the territory.

Having served the people of this community as their financial depository as well as in trusts and deposits it is not strange that this institution is recognized as a financial establishment exercising good influence upon the commercial and industrial life of this locality.

They have been conservative while keeping step with modern progress; they always have the greatest consideration for their patrons' needs, and the affairs of this institution have always been in the hands of men of experience in financial and trust matters.

Operating upon a conservative policy they have always been a leader in all matters that promised the progress and expansion of the commercial and industrial organization of this section of the state.

This financial institution is organized to officiate in any trust capacity and has charge of handling many estates both large and small. This concern officiating in this capacity is in a better position than an individual to render impartial and efficient service. It is organized for this service and endeavors to see to it that no excess taxes are paid; that matters are not delayed through illness, vacation, but that the interest of every person concerned is carefully guarded and efficiently served. It is always wise to name as trustee a corporation rather than an individual in all trust matters regardless of their nature.

While we dislike to acknowledge the fact even to ourselves, frequently relatives or friends appointed to act as administrators of an estate mismanage money and properties, permit complications that are unnecessary and briefly lose much money for the estate and money that heirs are rightly entitled to.

It is said that the average life of an unprotected estate is less than ten years. If you make a will and appoint this trust company your executor or trustee you will be protecting your estate and will know also that your will is being carried out to the letter and with justice and fairness to all.

Interest paid on deposits and is equipped to render the most highly satisfactory banking accommodations. Tellers and clerks are courteous and efficient, receiving the deposits of dollars with the same magnanimity service that is extended to the larger corporations. They transact a general banking and trust business and offer a complete and comprehensive service of modern and reliable bank and trust service are at the command of the patrons of this institution.
